VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County landowners, primarily farmers, must make some hard decisions about what they intend to do with their land because of a county-wide tax reassessment that could significantly raise real estate values and taxes.

Even those who have sold their development rights as part of an effort to preserve agricultural land aren't safe from having taxes rise significantly, according to experts.

On Tuesday night, a meeting was held at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, sponsored jointly by the Lancaster County Tax Assessment office and the county Farm Bureau to explain the reassessment process, what it means, and aspects of the state's Act 319, also called the "Clean and Green Act."

It was one of four meetings scheduled to be held at various locations around the county. Two meetings remain: Jan. 30 in Hoffman Building of the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville; and on Feb. 3 at the Blue Ball Fire Company.

The county-wide, real estate-value reassessment for tax purposes was performed at the order of the state supreme court because county leaders failed to call for a county-wide reassessment since 1962.

Efforts to correct the situation began in the city of Lancaster in 1980 with efforts by the Leaque of Women Voters, the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and the city of Lancaster school districts. After several years of discussion, it eventually became an issue for the courts.

Even though reassessing properties on a reasonably cyclical basis would be prudent, just, and fulfill the intent of the law, it is an anathema for career politicians — it has been observed by some politicians that very few get re-elected following a county-wide reassessment.

While that has been blamed by some for the inequities in taxing rates that resulted in a court-

Wysox (Bradford Co.) — Elecuon of directors and plans for future activities were on the agenda at the Bradford County Holstein Club's annual meeting.

Held at Bonanza Restaurant here, more than 70 people attended the noon meeting.

On top of the list of activities was the election of three new directors. Al Calkins of Troy, Tom Wright of Canton, and Jeff Jenkins of Columbia Cross Roads were selected to fill the posts vacated by retiring directors Keith Thomson of Towanda, Bill Hennip, of Rome and Dave Walrath, of Milan.

The three new directors join President Dean Jackson of Colum-

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — More than 1,600 Pennsylvana vegetable and fruit growers are expected to convene here at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center for the annual Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference and Trade Show, scheduled Jan. 31-Feb. 2.

The conference is held concurrently with the 136th annual meeting of the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania. Also, the state horticultural societies of Maryland and New Jersey also meet in conjunction with the fruit growers from Pennsylvania at the three-day event.

During the conference, a wide variety of grower topics, panels, and meetings provide an array of information to vegetable and fruit growers in the region. Lancaster Farming provides a complete schedule in this issue. More than 20 pesticide applicator training credits are available to growers attending the sessions.

This year, according to Bill Troxell, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, Northumberland, special sessions on Wednesday morning will highlight value-

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The largest crowd to ever attend the annual Sire Power, Inc., meeting in the Hotel Hershey heard reports of success for 1994. While the profits were not as large as 1993's record-breaking. net returns were acceptable in light of the new approach to sales across the country.

Starting last year, the organization went from using independent contractors to a system of employing their own people to provide services to a large portion of the states and locations where dairy farming takes place. More than $1 million was spent on equipment and personnel to expand the operation. Currently they have employed sales people in all U.S. markets. President Gary Rickard reported improved sales as these sales people become established. In addition, the young sire program has expanded to include 130 bulls per year. A new 100 stall young sire barn has been completed and currently is in use as the beginning step of their increased product development program.

During the past year, new bylaws were written for the cooperative to outline the purpose and operational structure of the organization. These new bylaws establish three director regions, each with approximately the same number of members. A delegate system replaces state boards, and these delegates will elect three directors from each region to serve on the Sire Power board.

A patronage dividend was not declared due to the modest net income of $308,461.

DuWayne Kutz, general manager, described 1993-1994 as a year

Prices were generally unchanged. The market tone was steady. Demand was fair to good, mostly moderate. Supplies were generally adequate or available. Breaking stock supplies were adequate for the fair demand, and prices remained unchanged. Light type hen offerings were fully adequate for the unaggressive demand, and the market tone was steady.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
WEDNESDAY JANUARY 25, 1995

CORRECTIONS WERE MADE IN WHEAT PITS, TODAY, AS LIGHT PROFIT TAKING SHAVED A PORTION OFF THIS WEEK'S GAINS. CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES WERE FINISHED THE DAY MIXED. WHEAT 1 TO 4 CENTS LOWER. CORN MIXED. SORGHUM 2 TO 4 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS MIXED. WINTER WHEAT CROP IS REPORTED IN GOOD CONDITION WITH RECENT SNOWFALL GIVING PROTECTION TO WHEAT. RECENT PRICE ADVANCES WERE TRIMMED BY LIGHT PROFIT TAKING ON THE BOARD, DESPITE THE EXCELLENT EXPORT SALES SO FAR THIS WEEK. CHINA IS EXPECTED TO TENDER SOON FOR ADDITIONAL WHEAT, LIMITING PRICE DECLINES. VERY LITTLE HAS HAPPENED IN CORN PITS THIS WEEK. THE SLIGHT WEAKNESS HAS BEEN NO SURPRISE DUE TO THIS YEAR'S RECORD CROP. MINNEAPOLIS REPORTED NO BID FOR CORN OR SOYBEANS TODAY AS STORAGE FACILITIES ARE FLOWING OVER AND RAIL CARS ARE SCARCE. THE SOUTH KOREAN CORN PURCHASE PUT A LITTLE STRENGTH BACK INTO CORN PRICES BUT MORE FOREIGN SALES ARE NEEDED TO REALLY PERK UP PRICES. SOUTH AMERICAN WEATHER CONTINUED FAVORABLE, IMPROVING THE PROBABILITY FOR GOOD BEAN YIELDS THIS YEAR. SOYBEAN MEAL AND OIL PRICES DECLINED TODAY AND THE LACK OF EXPORT INTEREST THIS WEEK, PRESSURED PRICES.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

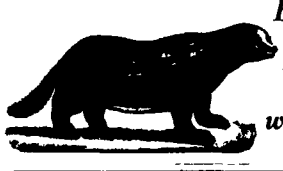
JAN. 30-FEB. 5, 1995

CHINESE NEW YEAR, JANUARY 31.

SIX WEEKS OF WINTER?

Traditionally, Candlemas Day (February 2) was the day to determine the timing for sowing and planting. Sunshine on Candlemas Day indicated a return of winter. In some areas, an animal was part of the folklore. A bear brought the news in France and England, while Germany had its badgers. German immigrants to Pennsylvania in the 1800s brought the legend to America. Finding no badgers, but lots of groundhogs, they adopted the New World species to fit the lore, and in Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, a star was born!

If Candlemas Day be warm and bright,
Winter will take another bite,
But if Candlemas Day brings cold and rain,
Winter is gone, and won't come again.



TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Revive limp lettuce and celery by placing in a pan of cold water with a couple slices of raw potato.

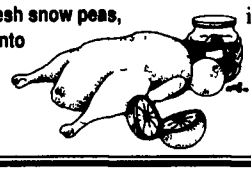
CHINESE CHICKEN STEW

1 tablespoon olive oil
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon powdered ginger
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 scallions, chopped
3 pounds chicken breasts, skinned
2 cups chicken broth
1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
1/2 cup fresh snow peas, sliced into slivers

Make a marinade of oil, soy sauce, chili powder, ginger, garlic, and scallions. Pour over chicken and chill for one hour. In a large skillet bring broth to boil; add chicken, reduce heat, and simmer for one hour or until chicken is tender. Five minutes before serving add mushrooms and snow peas and cook gently. Serve over rice.

Makes 6 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When the wind's in the east on Candlemas Day,
There it will stick till the 2nd of May.

Half of your wood and half your hay,
Should be gone and be left on Candlemas Day.

On the eve of Candlemas Day
Winter gets stronger or passes away.

The Most Empathic Methods

Researchers and farmers have a moral responsibility to minimize the suffering animals undergo in research and production. Ian Duncan, an animal behavior researcher with the University of Guyelph, Guelph, Ontario, Canada, told the attendees of the American Society of Animal Science annual meeting recently in Pittsburgh that all too frequently things are done to animals only to see benefits. But there may be a cost involved in the things we do to our animals.

For example, Duncan noted that producers who raise chickens in confinement often trim the birds' beaks to reduce fighting and cannibalism among the birds. New research indicates de-beaking causes acute and chronic pain for the birds and reduces their feed intake.

"There is evidence that animals feel pain. We have an obligation to alleviate that pain," Duncan told more than 1,000 researchers gathered for a joint meeting of the society and the International Society for Applied Ethology. Ethology is the study of animal behavior.

Because there is no evidence that animals have any concept of their own mortality, Duncan sees no reason to stop using animals for research or food. But he believes the suffering of animals in agriculture must be minimized. "The animal welfare issue will not disappear and cannot be solved by public relations alone," Duncan said.

The only way we can answer critics of animal agriculture is to prove by scientific research that our theories are correct. And when we know the right way to treat our animals, we have a God-given responsibility to use the most empathic methods possible.

Now Is The Time

To Know Fire Safety

Being prepared for emergencies can save lives and property. Children especially have a greater chance to survive a crisis if taught how to react to safety signals.

Some items to consider:

- Each house needs smoke detectors. Do a battery check once a week and replace batteries twice a year.
- Make a map for your family that will be used to escape from the house in case of a fire. Have each child talk and draw his or her own map to explain how they will make an emergency exit.
- Practice having each child lead the family to a designated place to meet outside the house.
- Practice stop, drop, and roll techniques.
- Have emergency numbers posted at each phone.
- Treat minor burns with cold running water or hold an ice cube on the burned area.
- Teach children that matches, charcoal lighter fluid, and gasoline can start fires and are not play items anytime.

To Analyze Net Farm Income

According to Steve Ford, Penn State agricultural economist, the average net farm income for the 934 farms in the 1993 Pennsylvania Dairy Farm Business Analysis was $20,132.

However, looking at averages, we fail to recognize the variation around the average. A truer depiction of the financial health of the Pennsylvania dairy industry may be drawn from the distribution of net farm income across all farms.

Ranking farms by percentile, an equal number of farms made more or less than $17,784. More, importantly, 30 percent of the farms in the sample made less than $5,566 and only 10 percent made more than $57,255. The range was from -$115,040 to $283,575.

There are many factors that affect net income, including productivity, investment, management, business planning, etc.

As you start doing your 1994 taxes, now would be a could time to evaluate your farm business and see where you stand financially. If you are not happy with the numbers, you need to evaluate your future.

Dairy MAP is an excellent program to help you map a future for your dairy farm. Contact your local county extension office for more details.

To Plant At Proper Depth

The depth at which forage seeds are planted is extremely important to the initial stand establishment and ultimately to the life of a stand.

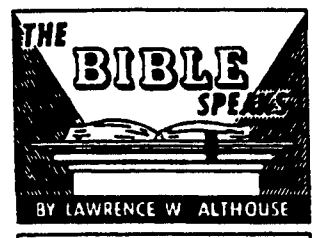
Forage seeds are small and contain a limited amount of energy to support plant growth without photosynthetic activity.

Planting forage seeds too deep may exhaust the energy reserves in the seed and inhibit seedling emergence or weaken the newly emerged seedling. Poor seedling establishment of non-spreading forage species can spell problems for the stand through increased weed competition and lower yields. Precision in depth of planting for forage seeds is extremely important.

In general, increasing seeding depth of forage seeds below one-half inch is detrimental to seedling establishment. Increasing planting depth from one-half to one inch decreased forage seedling establishment an average of 30 percent in clay soils.

At shallow seeding depths, seed-to-soil contact is also important to insure that the seeds can imbibe adequate water from the soil to germinate. This may be accomplished with press wheels or cultipacking.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "It takes courage to push yourself to places that you have never been before, to test your limits, and to break through barriers."



WHAT DO YOU WANT?
January 29, 1995

Background Scripture:
Matthew 20:17 through 21:17
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 20:17-28

In the November, 1994 issue of Circuit Rider, a magazine for United Methodist clergy, a former colleague, Dr. Kenneth W. Kruger of Dayton, Ohio, writes an article entitled, "10 Reasons Why It's Hard to Be a United Methodist Minister and a Christian." One reason, he says, is that "our system (the denominational structure) fosters a caste society" in which "the apex of achievement is to be elected bishop." Furthermore, he says, "We (clergy) seek prestige instead of practicing servanthood." He asks: "Have you ever heard of the senior pastor of a prestigious church leaving his/her pulpit to become the shepherd of a struggling church?"

Although these remarks were directed specifically to United Methodist clergy, they are applicable to clergy of all denominations. And I believe that, by extension, they have some relevance for laity as well. The church structures we have fashioned—Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox— are often more reflective of the values of the secular world than of the Gospel that motivated them in the first place. Churches espouse spiritual themes but tend to run on secular principles.

Why is that? Probably the answer lies in the fact that secular values are generally more attractive to us than spiritual ones. When we want to know what "success" means, we look to secular models, not spiritual ones. When we want to know what is "important," we look somewhere else than to the example of Jesus. Although the Gospel calls lay and clergy alike to servanthood, this concept has never really caught on.

TO BE SUCCESSFUL

So, the situation in Matthew 20:20-28 is just as current as the latest edition of your parish paper or denominational magazine. The mother of James and John, is very understandable: "...kneeling before him she asked him for something." "What do you want?' Jesus replies. She said to him, "Command that these two sons of mine may sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your kingdom." What did she want? Just for her boys to be successful in their chosen profession, that's all.

How did the other disciples react to this audacious but honest request? Understandably: "And when the ten heard it, they were indignant at the two brothers." How dare they put their mother up to an obvious power play! I'm sure their indignation was no little fueled by their own ambitions. If Jesus were to have asked each of them the same question— "What do you want?"—and they had answered honestly, would any of them ask for less? And when Jesus asks each of us, "What do you want?", what is your honest answer?

"WE ARE ABLE"

His reply to the mother of James and John is also directed to us: "You do not know what you are asking." The gospel is not material or worldly gain, but servanthood. "Are you able to drink the cup that I am to drink?", He asked. And James and John replied, "We are able." It is easy to say, "We are able," but putting that resolve into practice is something else.

The only "success" Jesus knew was his faithfulness to the Good News. The only "importance" to be gained in following him is the role of the servant, not the welder of power. "You know the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great men exercise authority over them. It shall not be so among you; but whoever would be great among you must be your servant, and whoever would be first among you must be your slave; even as the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve..."

After all these years we still haven't got the "success" and "importance" thing right! Maybe that's because we don't know what we really want.

New Holland Vegetable Day Set

New Holland (Lancaster Co.) — Whether you are just thinking about getting started in vegetable production or have been raising vegetables for years, the 1995 New Holland Vegetable Day has something for you.

The Eastern Lancaster County School District is sponsoring the day-long event for commercial vegetable growers on Feb. 20. The meeting will be held at the Summit Valley Elementary School, one mile South of New Holland. The meeting will feature 18 different topics held in a series of concurrent sessions.

The Vegetable Day starts at 9 a.m. with registration and an opportunity to visit exhibitors. The morning sessions begin at 9:30 a.m. with topics covering greenhouse plant management, insect identification and management, water rights and irrigation, fall root crop production, and market stand management.

Pesticide credits will be available for several sessions. Lunch will be available for a nominal fee. For more information, contact Jeff Stoltzfus at (717) 354-1522.

of transition due to the change in marketing philosophy to develop all high cow population areas with employee sales representatives. Kutz said that while the profit was modest, Sire Power's strong financial health is shown by a year end closing balance sheet of $3.70 of assets for every $1.00 of liability and no current indebtedness.

Sire Power was again the number one dollar volume supplier of semen sold to World-Wide Sires of all the U.S. Cooperatives. World-Wide has markets in Europe, Asia, South Africa, and other foreign countries. And in the U.S. Sire Power's blend price per unit of semen is still under $10.00.

The cooperative continued to support youth with scholarships. Fifteen $500 scholarship to college students in the company's three membership areas were presented. In addition, a $2,000 scholarship was also awarded in memory of Lew Campbell, former Sire Power general manager.

This year the recipient of the Lew Campbell Memorial Scholarship was Carrie Bryant of Honesdale. She is the daughter of William and Debra Bryant and a student at Penn State University, majoring in Dairy and Animal Science. She is active in the Penn State Dairy Science Club, assistant editor of the Dairymen yearbook, Penn State Advocate, Block and Bridle Club and Ag Student Council. She has also served as the Wayne County Dairy Princess and was a 4-H member.

When Bryant graduates from college, she hopes to work in the dairy industry in promotion and public relations. By working in this area, she hopes to become a permanent spokesperson for the dairy industry.

Other scholarship recipients were Northeast Sales Division, Steven Deitrich, Germansville; Amy Packard, Troy; Suzanne Cadwallader, Salem, NJ; Robert Detrick, Kane; Dean Kohler, Kutztown; Joshua Harvatine, Thompson; Dana Harvatine, Thompson; Kara Tussey, Huntingdon; Brian Arnold, Monroeton; and Barbara House, Spring Mills.

Maryland and West Virginia Sales Division, Jennifer Trout, Forest Hill; Shannon Harrison, Burkittsville; Marie Lee Speak, Tanytown; Bradley Morris, Chestertown; Howard Reyburn, Oxford, Pa; William Pratt, South Point, OH; and Marc Toothman, Mannington, WV.

Brothers Pay Attention To Kind Of Corn They Plant

RONNIE BRECHBILL

McCONNELLSBURG (Fulton Co.) — A yield of 213 bushels of corn per acre made the Glenn brothers of McConnellsburg new members of the Five Acre Corn Club Their farm is along Route 552 south in Fulton County s scen ic valleys

Paul, seated, and son Ernest Mast check crop production records at their farm kitchen table The Masts achieved a goal of more than 200 bushels of corn per acre in the National Corn Growers contest in the irrigated division

These Corn Growers Reach 200 Bushels In National Corn Contest

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor
MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — When you grow more than 200 bushels of corn per acre, you have a good year That s what Paul and son Ernest Mast did this year in the National Corn Growers contest in the irrigated division But they don t look at themselves as professional corn growers In fact they are probably more well known for their potatoes

We like to get things done on time Paul said We think that s important Every day your are late in planting you loose a little production It costs as much to plant or harvest late as it does to do it on time In fact for harvest, it costs more We would even hire extra help to get it done on time if we had to

Ernest thinks another reason for good production is the rotation of crops They never plant corn on corn because potatoes and wheat are also in their crop rotation Sometimes they plant soybeans to increase the fertility of the soil

With good soil fertility and enough water the Masts believe you can plant heavy populations They average about 30 000 to 32 000 plants per acre

The Masts have irrigation equipment for their potatoes so they also use it on their corn But the investment would be too great for only corn If you invest in equipment you need to use it Paul said I don t know if I would do it just for corn but you must irrigate the higher risk crops like potatoes I believe the quality of the crop improves with irrigation because the crop matures at the right time

With 200 steers on feed, 30 acres of corn is put into the silos Wheat is stored until corn harvest then sold to make room for the corn The corn is then stored unto mid winter when the price is usually stronger

The Masts also grow some pumpkins and have four acres of strawberries they sell retail from a road side market along Route 23

The farm house dates back to 767 when settlers of Welsh back ground settled in the area known as the Welsh mountains An antique corner cupboard and fireplace mantel are displayed in the Metropolitan museum of art in New York City These priceless treasures were sold out of the house during the Great Depression to a local antique dealer to raise money to buy mules so the farming operation could continue Jacob Mast, Paul s father needed the money at the time Times were hard and you did anything you could do to keep going

As for the controversy of agriculture against the environment, Paul believes agriculture is good for the environment This is especially evident if you are hungry It s tough to eat a tree he said And chemicals cost so much you can t afford to use more than necessary Environmentalists should know this

PSU Offers Satellite Dairy Nutrition Workshops

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Milk producers can now register for Penn State's popular Dairy Nutrition Workshops, scheduled for Feb. 2, 9, and 16. The workshops will once again be offered via satellite across Pennsylvania and in selected locations in several neighboring states.

This is the second year for these highly successful workshops, attended by more than 500 people last year. This year's sessions — expected to reach nearly 700 farmers at about 40 locations in eight states — will take participants via satellite through a feed mill, on farm tours, and even inside the rumen of a dairy cow.

The workshops will combine local hands-on activities conducted by extension agents and interaction with Penn State faculty via satellite at locations in Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

Sessions will feature video segments, exercises on balancing rations, and discussions on nutrition-related topics by county agents, plus a question-and-answer period featuring specialists in dairy cattle nutrition, agronomy, and agricultural engineering.

Satellite lectures by Penn State Dairy and Animal Science faculty members Larry Muller, Dick Adams, Gabriella Varga, and Jud Heinrichs will focus on feeding and managing cows in early and mid-lactation, dry cows, and heifers, with emphasis on troubleshooting metabolic problems.

Lisa Holden will look at basic pasture usuage, and Virginia Ishler will discuss how to determine dry matter content of forages.

Agricultural engineer Dennis Buckmaster will showcase Penn State's new forage-particle-size separator. This equipment will provide better analysis of silages and total mixed rations.

Workshops will start at 9:30 a.m. and end at 3 p.m., with an hour for lunch. The $30 registration fee includes the cost of a forage sample analysis. An additional charge will be made if meals are provided, but this will vary across sites. To register or for more information, contact the Extension office in your county.

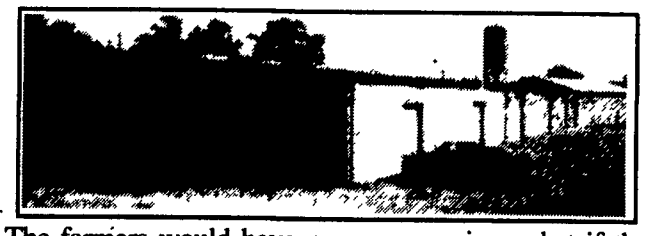
ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

We Couldn't Do It Without You!



The farmers would have more money in pocket if they make all buyers buy at auctions. The buyer would like it better and do the job cheaper. With county buying and auction, one or the other will lose out. "Which one should go?"

We would like to ask farmers who signed contracts for tobacco, why can't we raise the price? "How can we raise the price when tobacco companies tell us 1/3 of tobacco is sold on contract?" This tells us that 1/3 of farmers are satisfied at $1.20 per pound.

Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative Grows Many Ways

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MT. JOY (Lancaster Co.) — A quorum of the 158-member Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative approved several changes to its bylaws, elected officers and heard favorable business reports Wednesday during its annual banquet-meeting at Country Table Restaurant in Mt. Joy.

According to Donald Risser, chairman of the board, who was re-elected to the board during the meeting, 1994 was a year of unprecedented growth for the cooperative, which saw 38 cooperators added to its ranks.

Risser said that fewer than half of those new members were associated with Hershey Foods Corp.'s recent elimination of independent producers supplying milk and contracting directly with Atlantic Dairy Cooperative for supplies. The majority of former Hershey producers joined ADC.

The Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative is part of a federated marketing group that includes two additional producer cooperatives of similar size. Their milk is marketed through Dairy Processing Inc. (DPI), which has an agreement with Atlantic Dairy Cooperative to supply milk at certain plants in such a manner as to ensure that raw milk customers get the supplies they need as quickly as possible, with the least amount of cost to all involved.

According to Royce Seifert, API representative, "We continue to enjoy a fine relationship between Mt. Joy and API."

Seifert said that while the majority of Mt. Joy milk goes to two processors — Beatrice Cheese and John Labatts of Canada — because of the arrangement with ADC, some of the milk goes to other processors as well.

The Labatts operation owns Johanna Farms (in addition to a number of other businesses and part of a major league baseball team), which operates in Lansdale, having closed its Flemington, N.J. headquarters. Johanna had bottled several different brands of milk, but now markets it all under the label, "Lehigh Valley Dairies." Mt. Joy milk goes to Lansdale, to a Mt. Washington facility, and to Beatrice, in Allentown.

The contract with Labatts ends early in 1996, and discussions for a contract renewal have begun, while the contract with Beatrice extends until 1999.

The Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative Board of Directors with the help of Lancaster County Dairy Princess Amy Espenshade display the cooperative's new farm sign. The board members are, from the left, J. Kenneth Miller, David Landis, Robert Brandt, Donald Risser, Ken Balmer, David Dum, and Roy Alger.

It was announced that Beatrice has expanded its plant to allow for more production of cheddar cheese. When Beatrice bought the current plant from API it had been a cheddar plant, but Beatrice converted it mostly to the production of mozzarella cheese. Now it has expanded to increase cheddar production, which means an increased market for milk.

Seifert said that currently Mt. Joy and API have "... truly been blessed with an abundance that translates into ... prosperity."

Referring to Deuteronomy VIII, he said that members should remember that prosperity is ultimately not of their making, and they should keep that in mind when making decisions. He said that Mt. Joy members should continue to work together with sister

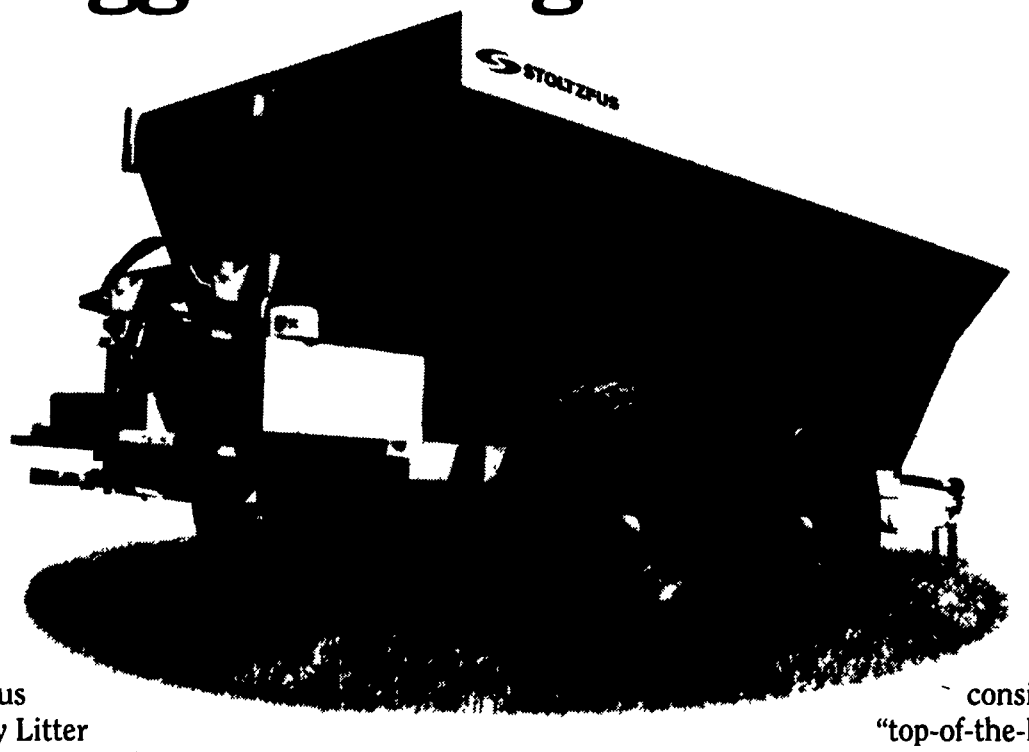
The One Spreader Big Enough For Poultry Litter, Rugged Enough For Lime.



The Stoltzfus Poultry Litter Spreader is specifically designed for the demands of this challenging job. The 20 foot hopper holds a whopping 400 cubic foot load, meaning fewer trips for you. The big 30-inch drag chain moves large volumes of litter fast. And the dual hydraulic spinners spread a wide, uniform pattern up to 40 feet wide.

But its real beauty may be its versatility. Now you can spread fertilizer, stockpiled lime, compost, poultry litter and more, all with one machine.

Long considered "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders, many Stoltzfus Spreaders are still in use after 20 years. That makes a Stoltzfus Spreader preferred not only for quality and performance, but also for terrific economy in the long run.

Sure you can settle for buying on initial price alone. But with a Stoltzfus Spreader you won't be shopping for another spreader just a couple years down the line.

New Directors Named At Bradford Holstein Meeting

bia Cross Roads, Secretary Paul Sheeley of Troy, Treasurer Bonnie Miller of Towanda, and directors Ray Norconk, New Albany; Duane Wilcox, Canton; and Dick Packard, Troy.

Although the new year has barely begun, the Holstein Club has already planned a full slate of activities beginning with the Junior Pennsylvania Holstein Convention in West Middlesex, Feb. 10-12, and the Senior Convention, Feb. 23-25.

Ken Raney, director of member services, encouraged all members to take time to attend part or all of the conventions.

On March 4, the Bradford County Club has made plans to tour the Springfield area of the county. The three stops on the tour will include the farms of John and Jeff Jenkins, Charles and Bill Houseknecht, and Danny Hoppaugh.

Two weeks later, club members will travel to Centre County where they'll have tours of four prominent farms; Dan and Penny Ulmer's, of Belefonte, Paul and Mary Hartle's, also of Belefonte; Jake and Sally Tannis' of Centre Hall; and Jay Hauser and Son's of Spring Mills.

In an effort to get people excited about taking the tour, President Jackson noted that it's sometimes hard to get away, but what you learn by visiting others can help your whole operation.

Other activities to mark on the calendar, according to Raney are the 1995 spring show which will be held on March 24, followed by the spring sale on April 1.

Moving from spring into summer, Holstein breeders from across the state will have the opportunity to host the 1995 National Holstein Convention. Raney outlined activities of the late June convention including the sale, the opportunity to place an ad in the souvenir booklet and to purchase tickets for the calf raffle that will benefit the junior convention.

Yet another opportunity for the Northeast will materialize as youth from across the state attend the junior judging school to be held in the Bradford County area in July.

As the focus of the meeting shifted from planned activities national business, National Holstein Director Ron Wood was on hand to field questions and explain new programs. Included in his presentation was the new ear tag identification option and the new selections in the classification program.

He also commented on the continued downsizing at the national level. Currently the large mainframe computer which once held all the information for the association is being replaced with personal computers. The switch should be completed by the end of 1995.

Most important to Wood, however, were the comments from the group.

"I can stand up here and talk all day," he said, "but I want to hear from you."

The main comment from the group focused on the perceived inability to attract field staff to the area, to which Wood suggested they not only contact the field representative, but also call the national office.

Before giving up the floor, Wood encouraged all Holstein members to attend the upcoming winter forum meetings to be informed of all the changes in the industry and to have their voice heard.

Also on the agenda was recognition for awards garnered throughout the 1994 season. Receiving All Pennsylvania Awards were Lynn and Bonnie Miller, of Towanda, Danielle Sparling, of Troy and David Packard, of Troy.

Acknowledgment was also given to the ten junior members who entered 37 records in the milk, fat and protein production contest.

On the lighter side, Area Extension Forester Bob Hansen entertained the group with tales of his trip to Norway and Denmark.

"It's been a long time since I milked cows," remarked Hansen, "but when I got to Norway I thought I saw the smartest cows in the world."

As Hansen flashed a picture of a farmer being followed by a small group of cows, he reminisced about the days when he chased cows from behind to get them to the milking shed, often with little luck. Upon closer inspection, however, Hansen discovered the trick.

National Holstein Director Ron Wood explained changes in national policy and opened the floor for questions and comments.

The farmer was carrying a salt block on his back and the cows, anxious to get a small taste of the treat, were obediently following.

In both Norway and Denmark agriculture is a prime activity. In Norway, Hansen explained, it was not unusual for a farmer to make a living on 12 cows plus his forest land. Twenty-one percent of the land in Norway is seeded in productive forest while. 3 percent of the land is used for other agricultural purposes.

In Denmark, where trees are not as plentiful, animal agriculture takes a bigger share of the economy utilizing 62 percent of the land. The most important commodities in Denmark being cheese, milk, eggs and meat.

Fair Association Selects Queen, Fairperson Of Year

Lanius, a dairy farmer from York who continued the operation that was started by his grandfather, has been involved with agriculture and county fairs almost all his life.

In announcing the award, Bruce Koppenhaver, association secretary/treasurer, said Lanius's involvement in agricultural and rural community organizations has included serving with the local Farm Bureau, the state and local Guernsey breeder association, as past president of the Dairy Shrine, past president of the rural development association, with the Pa. Council of Farm Organizations, a member of the state Milk Marketing Board of Directors, and numerous other involvements.

In accepting the award, Donald said he credited his wife with helping with chores so that he could attend meetings and conventions, and with supporting his efforts to contribute to the betterment of the community.

He said he will continue to do all he can to help with the success of county fairs. "Fair are something that we need to bring us together," he said.

The newly crowned queen, Randall, 18, is the daughter of Charles and Kathryn Randall, and is a graduate of Rockwood High School. She currently attends Millersville University, pursuing a degree in marine biology.

According to a booklet on the queens, Jennifer's goal is to pursue a career in shark research. In high school, she graduated 10th in her class with a grade point average of 3.5, and was involved in various academic and leadership organizations, in addition to participating 4-H and other community activities.

Randall was one of 43 fair queen contestants whom had won their positions as queens of their respective home county fairs this past summer.

In preparation for the coronation luncheon when the panel of judges does their final selection of a new queen, all the contestant queens spend almost two days of the convention being interviewed, attending a seminar, competing in an evening gown competition, and having themselves photographed.

During the luncheon, held in the convention ballroom, the association officers and queen judges sit at an elevated head table, midway along the long, north wall.

Directly opposite the head table against the south wall is a large stage, that during the convention is used frequently by various entertainers who get the chance to showcase their acts in hopes of getting work at county fairs. For the coronation luncheon, the stage is provided with risers and chairs for the contestants to sit, as well as a large queen's chair.

In between the head table and stage, for the length and width of the floor, are round tables where the queens and their families and county fair board representatives sit.

A tuxedo-ed Brad Hicks, television news reporter for WGAL TV8, served as master of ceremonies again this year.

The judges were Jean Arcurio, of Airville, a former central Pennsylvania Miss Pennsylvania and runnerup Miss Pennsylvania with a degree in performing arts and who teaches music to elementary students; Pat Suek, who with her husband ran a large farrow to finish operation, but recently got out because of the bankrupt-level price of hogs and market trends, and who is involved with various ag organizations and ag in the classroom; and Kenneth Nale, of Hershey, an agricultural science teacher at the Milton Hershey School for 16 years.

All 43 contestants for 1995 state fair queen sit on stage awaiting the selection of finalists, while outgoing state Fair Queen Beth Ann Paul talks to master of ceremonies Brad Hicks about her experiences as queen.

Jennifer Marie Randall of Somerset is named the 1995 Pennsylvania Fair Queen and, with outstretched hand that blocks the view of master of ceremonies Brad Hicks' face, thanks judges and the audience of the annual state queen coronation of the Pa. State Association of County Fairs. On the left are the four other finalists, who are, from the left, Tanya Campbell, Shannon Curry, Kimberly Horting, and Amy O'Boyle, state queen runnerup.

After Hicks announced the five finalists — Butler Fair Queen Tanya Campbell, Clearfield County Fair Queen Shannon Curry, Luzerne County Fair Queen Amy O'Boyle, Elizabethtown Fair Queen Kimberly Horting, and Somerset County Fair Queen Randall — he sent them out of the room, to be secluded until they were brought back on stage to be asked a question.

The question was, "What do you feel are the kinds of values that fair queens and local fairs represent?" All answers were, to a varying degree, capsulized in what Randall said about fair and fair queens representing a community effort to create a more enjoyable time, better education and mutual understanding: "A good sense of community is one of the most important values."

After the questioning, the judges left the room to confer and select the queen and runnerup.

In the meantime, the special honor of Miss Congeniality went to Spartansburg Community Fair Queen Stephannie Kay Root, and Beth Ann Paul, outgoing state fair queen, gave her goodbye address.

After recounting last year's win and her nervousness, she highlighted some of the events she attended while queen, such as serving as a judge in a Memorial Day beautiful baby contest, attending a Penn State University science fair, her hometown Denver Fair, the Lebanon County Farm-City Week Banquet, the state Farm Show and activities there.

She then thanked the people of the Denver Fair for the opportunity and said, "I hope I made those people as proud of me as I am of my home town."

And then she reflected on the personal effects of being a fair queen.

"I've grown to appreciate people more during my reign," she said, adding that while traveling around, she especially got a better sense for the backbone of community effort that agriculture provides.

Paul received a standing ovation from the crowd, when she ended with a quote from Dr. Seus, "With brains in your head, and feet in your shoes, you can go anywhere you choose!"

Selected as runnerup state fair queen was Luzerne County Fair Queen Amy O'Boyle, 19, daughter of John and Phyllis O'Boyle, of DuPont. A student at Wilkes University, she is currently pursuing a bachelor's degree in biology and pre-optompetry, with a minor in chemistry. Her goal is to open her own practice as an optometrist.

In other news, the associated reorganized and Frederick Trump, of Bloomsburg (Bloomsburg Fair), was named president. Franklin Long, of Tyrone (Sinking Valley Fair), was named vice president, while Bruce Koppenhaver, of Gratz (Gratz Fair), was named secretary/treasurer.

For more information on the PSACF, contact a local fair committeeperson or representative who can either provide information directly or how to contact one of the 20 state directors.

Five new directors for 1995 were also announced. They are Luke Bruckhart, of Manheim, Rick Marchione, of Newfoundland, Lee Robinson, of McDonald, Arthur Knauf, of Harmony, and Kathy Mosier, of Kersey.

added vegetable products.

In addition, on Thursday morning, Adrienne Zoble, a business, advertising, and public relations consultant, will speak about how to write a marketing plan. Zoble, founder and president of Adrienne Zoble Associates in Somerville, N.J., has worked with both small and large businesses in developing marketing plans and training personnel.

During the special marketing short course on Thursday, Zoble said she will be speaking about developing a marketing plan for small businesses. During a special afternoon panel, Zoble said she will be looking at advertisements to analyze them for what benefits the products or services provide (taste? convenience? location? hours?) as contrasted to merely "features" that don't answer the question consumers ask when reading an ad: WIIFM, or "what's in it for me?"

Donna Miller, an artist with D-Square Designs in Lemoyne, and Rudy Grob, advertising director for Funk's Farm Market in Millersville, will also participate in the advertisement review panel, to be moderated by John Stark, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Short course participants are urged to bring along samples of print advertising and the panel will then evaluate them for the audience. There is an additional $15 fee for participation in the short course.

Dr. Joan Thomson from Penn State will make the opening presentation of the short course. She will be presenting the results of a survey of 1,214 Pennsylvanians and their produce-buying habits.

On Thursday afternoon, after the marketing short course ad review panel, is another panel, "Breathing New Life Into Pennsylvania's Farmers' Markets," modered by John Stark, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Charles Radle, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, will be revewing some of the food safety requirements farm markets need to meet if they prepare fresh vegetables for ready use.

Troxell said the state vegetable growers association regularly conducts an annual survey of what growers think about the conference. The marketing short course has some of the best response of the survey, he said.

Troxell said the short course is used to draw high quality speakers at the conference. "It is something that has been well received and that people appreciate," he said.

Also, members of the association, which totals 600, also point out good response to the irrigation and integrated crop management portions of the conference.

Several other aspects of the conference include the Fresh Market Vegetables segment during the Tuesday morning program, such as comparison of staked and pruned tomatoes vs. neither, by Doug Sanders, North Carolina State University, and a cost analysis for stake-grown tomatoes by Robin Brumfield, Rutgers University.

Wednesday morning features the use of fertigation, by Sanders. Troxell said that "fertigation" is a big topic, as evidenced by the answers on the survey from the state vegetable growers. "It's been a topic that we get a lot of requests for," he said.

Also, there are various grower panels throughout the three-day conference, including "Grower Experiences With Carousel Planters" moderated by Dwight Hess, Furman Foods, Marietta, on Tuesday afternoon. Another panel, during the Wednesday morning General Vegetables section, is "What I'm Looking For When I Buy," a panel modered by Robert Amsterdam, Cohen and Son, Biglerville.

In addition, state fruit grower educational sessions are held all three days, including complying with regulations on Tuesday afternoon, small fruit sessions on Wednesday afteroon, and fruit sessions all day Thursday. There is also a bedding plants session on Thursday afternoon at the conference.

At the conference's trade show, more than 120 exhibitors have signed up to display vegetable and fruit production products on two floors of the convention center. "This is one of the better shows in the Northeast for them," according to Troxell. "Historically, growers have always been satisfied with the show."

Awards will also be presented at the conference. On Tuesday at noon, the annual Tomato Awards Luncheon is held to honor producers for processed tomato yields. Tickets are $9 each for the luncheon.

On Tuesday evening at 6:30, the Fruit and Vegetable Growers annual banquet is held. There, the associations honor retiring presidents and several lifetime memberships in the associations are awarded. Troxell said three members will be honored with lifetime memberships at the conference. Cost of the banquet is $25 per person.

Troxell said the annual conference will also be held next year at Hershey. One of the reasons is the central location and because Hershey has the facilities to handle a large conference under one roof.

One-day member registration is $25 and three-day registration in advance is $30. Non-member one-day registration is $35 and three-day registration is $55.

Regular yearly membership in the state vegetable growers association is $40.

For more information, contact Troxell at the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, RD 1 Box 392, Northumberland, PA 17857-9723, (717) 473-8468.

WPS Regulations Reviewed At Chester Crops Day

Pesticide Labels May Contain Worker Protection Regulations

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GUTHRIESVILLE (Chester Co.) — Applicators beware: pesticide labels are being rewritten with intent to place some aspects of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Worker Protection Standard (WPS) in them. Those regulations, such as wearing protective clothing and imposing restricted re-entry times, could affect your operation in a big way.

Now is the time to fully read and understand WPS regulations because they may soon be made legal and enforceable, according to Kerry Hoffman, Penn State pesticide education coordinator.

Hoffman spoke to about 125 industry representatives — including private and commercial applicators — on Monday morning at the Chester County Crops Day.

According to Hoffman, many of the regulations exempt private applicators and their immediate family (that includes brothers, sisters, mothers, fathers, children, even foster children and foster parents) — except in-laws. The Environmental Protection Agency, under whose auspices the WPS regulations are written, "felt inherently that you have provided those kinds of things for your family and you would take care of your family," according to Hoffman.

But if you employ workers to dispense pesticides, and your business commercially provides pesticide applications, take heed. Soon — unless commodity groups and other organizations can make necessary changes to the law — the WPS could become enforceable.

For private applicators, if cited, the fine is $1,000 per incident. For commercial applicators, fines are $5,000 per incident, according to Hoffman.

The bottom line, according to the pesticide education coordinator, is worker protection.

"This is a law that forces you to do what yo have been doing for a lot of years — protecting yourself and the people that work for you from the potential to be exposed to pesticide residues in fields," she said.

Hoffman reviewed a checklist of WPS requirements for agriculture workers as defined by EPA. The following rules may soon apply:

✔ Information at a central location. The information would include a poster (available through your extension office) about the dangers of being in a treated area. Also, the poster would include the location of emergency treatment facilities. This central location also needs to have an indentification of any pesticide applications made, when, and in what areas. The central location can be an office, coffee room, time clock area — anywhere there is free and easy access by your employees.

✔ Training for workers. The training is contained in the EPA booklet, "The Worker Protection Standard For Ag Pesticides — How To Comply." The book is available from most cooperative extension offices. Workers are required to fully read and understand what is described in the book in order to meet this aspect of the requirements. The 42-page book is written in Spanish and English. Also, a videotape is available on a loan basis from cooperative extension offices.

✔ Decontamination sites. If any worker is exposed to a pesticide, make sure it is taken care of right away, according to Hoffman. This means that a wash-down site must be located within ¼ mile of the application site and must be equipped with soap, water, and single-use paper towels. The EPA guidelines spell out one gallon of water per worker and three gallons of water per handler.

✔ Emergency assistance. If there is an exposure, the employer must make sure the workers get treatment for the exposure, said Hoffman. How to obtain that assistance must be spelled out in the poster at the information at central location.

Hoffman said the first four rules apply to private and commercial applicators. The exemptions to the above four rules: immediate family, as defined above, excluding in-laws.

The following regulations apply to private and commercial applicators and their families:

✔ Restrictions during applications. If using a labeled "skull and crossbones" pesticide, voice contact must be maintained with the applicator at two-hour intervals. Also, protective clothing, including boots, gloves, and coveralls, must be worn according to label requirements.

✔ Special application restrictions in nurseries. EPA regulations are complex, depending on type of operation. Consult the book for details.

✔ Special application restrictions in greenhouses. Again, another EPA regulation specifically for greenhouse operators, with an array of requirements. Consult book for details.

The following regulation "is really the most difficult part of this regulation to understand and to communicate. In reality, the hardest part with this regulation is what's called restricted entry intervals (described here)," said Hoffman.

"With every chemical now," she said, "it is no longer OK to say, oh, you can go back in that field when the sprayers have dried or the dust is settled. That doesn't get it anymore. You cannot use that as criteria to judge when you're allowed to go back in a treated area."

✔ Restrictions during restricted-entry intervals (and limitations on early entry). As the regulation stands now, according to Hoffman, 12 hours is the minimum restricted entry interval for all chemicals. This depends on the label. Now more than ever before it's important to read the label, according to Hoffman.

✔ Notice about applications (oral warnings and treated area posting). Employers can orally instruct workers about what areas that pesticides have been applied. But, according to EPA regulations, a sign must be posted that clearly indicates "keep out." This warning sign is available through cooperative extension offices.

As a result of these WPS regulations, labels continue to change dramatically. Commodity organizations and farm bureaus are mounting drives to petition EPA to have the regulations altered, specifically the re-entry times, to conform more realistically to farm operations. Hoffman said that two weeks ago, 39 national commodity organizations joined to petition for another delay in the enforcement of the WPS.

"If you feel strongly about parts of this regulation that need to be changed, now is the time to speak," said Hoffman.

She said that the theory behind the regulations is good, "but the practicality needs a little work."

But for many businesses, it is better to make efforts to try to conform to WPS regulations to protect the health of the workers and vitality of the business in the long run. "It's better to err on the side of caution than to not do it at all," she said.

"I truly believe that we in Pennsylvania have really tried very hard to be progressive and to get this information out to you and to listen to your comments and to try and make this regulation work in every industry that it's been meant to address. It's hard to take a regulation and make it work for dairy farmers and flower growers all at the same time. But basically that's what they're doing. . . .

"I think that, for the most part, you are already doing the things you need to do to protect the people that you have out there from exposures," she said.

Also at the Crops Day, Alan Strock, Chester County farm management agent, reviewed some of the changes made to basic government programs and how they will affect farming.

One agency, the former USDA ASCS, is now the consolidated USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA). The SCS is now called the Natural Resources Conservation Service, or NRCS.

One thing that has become important to securing government assistance, particularly in times of disaster, is the new catastrophic coverage (CAT), the new federal crop insurance program, that is available from the USDA FSA. The annual fee is $50 per crop per county, not to exceed $200 per county or $600 per producer.

To qualify for other programs, according to Strock, farmers must purchase CAT. Applications must be made by March 15 for all crops. Additional coverage is available.

For other programs, of which Strock described, it is important that farmers "stay informed and stay in contact with local offices," he said.

Also at the Crops Day, Lynn Hoffman, Penn State agronomy extension specialist, provided information on new herbicides and spoke about conservation tillage. Dennis Calvin, Penn State entomology extension specialist, provided information on effective integrated pest management (IPM) programs available to farmers right now. He also provided an insect management update.

At the banquet, the county conservation district honored DH Lone Hill Farm, Honey Brook, as 1994 Conservation Farmer of the Year. Operated by David Horning, DH Lone Hill Farm milks about 70 cows and farms 133 acres. The crop rotation is two-year corn with a rye cover crop and a three- to four-year alfalfa stand. The farm follows a nutrient management and conservation plan that consists of conservation cropping, contour farming, contour stripcropping, cover cropping, manure storage, and pasture management.

The 1994 Innovative Farmer of the Year Award went to Seven Stars Farm, Inc., Kimberton, operated by David Griffith. Seven Stars Farm milks about 65 cows and farms 282 acres. The crop rotation is one-year corn, one-year soybean, one-year small grain, and a four-year alfalfa stand. The farm follows a nutrient management and conservation plan that consists of conservation cropping, contour farming, crop residue use, composting pad, conservation tillage, cover cropping, waste storage pond, pasture management, waterways, and wildlife management.

According to the district, the farm recently installed a composting pad with a waste storage pond to better utilize manure. The farm uses leaves and manure to make compost in order to retain the nutrients for later use in field application. All runoff water is collected in the waste storage pond and reapplied to either the compost or an adjacent field. Griffith also uses municipal leaves in his composting operation, according to the district.

Lancaster County Tax Reassessment

ordered fix, others contend that fast urban sprawl coming in the wake of the loss of a strong manufacturing and industrial base have combined to aggravate the delay.

Nevertheless, experts on Tuesday said that Lancaster County actually had one of the better ratings of disparity in tax assessments at 20 percent. That means that on average, most properties in the county were taxed on an assessed real estate value that was within 20 percent, above or below, the value now considered correct.

The reassessment process began almost two years ago with an informational meeting held by the Lancaster County Farm Bureau at the county Farm and Home Center to help people understand the process, why it was being undertaken, and what options were available under the state's "Clean and Green Act," otherwise known as Act 319.

The current round of meetings has been undertaken because landowners should be receiving information from the county tax office on the reassessed value of their property.

What landowners are being asked to do first is to look at the assessed value and consider whether it reasonably reflects the market value of the property.

If it does not, or if there are any questions, then they should contact the county tax assessment office, headed by Leo Gassler.

Farm Bureau's role in meeting, lead locally by county president Jane Balmer, was to provide information specifically for farmers who may find it very well in the interest to take advantage of the state's Clean and Green Act.

The Clean and Green program is unique in that it actually required a change in the state's constitution. Previously, the constitution held that all were to be taxed on the same basis.

However, in an effort to protect agriculture and open spaces, political leaders pushed to change the way farmland and forest land had to be taxed.

Instead of taxing these lands — in blocks of 10 acres or more, or providing $2,000 or more worth of agricultural commodities per year — on the basis of the market value, the Clean and Green Act requires local taxing authorities to tax them based on the use-value of the property.

This preferential taxing structure does not apply to buildings, just to land.

While this may eventually be cause for some disagreements, landowners were informed Tuesday that their farmhouses and farm buildings are going to be assessed at market value.

It was reported Tuesday that those who wish to enter the Clean and Green program must be willing to be committed to continuing their current land practices. If work is done to change the land protected under Clean and Green, the landowner is liable to pay up to seven-years worth of back taxes.

Those back taxes would be calculated based on the difference between what was paid, and what would have been paid if the land were taxed based on market value.

If the land is sold and the new owner changes the use of the land, then that owner is liable to pay the county up to seven-year's worth of back taxes.

Furthermore, if a determination is made that back taxes are owed, the county immediately puts a lien on the property — the same as if taxes were delinquent.

For those who have sold development rights, or whose property has a conservation easement protection, or some other form of deed restriction preventing development, officials said it would behoove the owners to immediately start the paperwork for Clean and Green.

If those properties are not entered into the Clean and Green program, then the county will tax them based on their market value.

It was reported by assessment experts Tuesday that farmland in Lancaster County that has sold its development rights has a current market value of only $500 per acre less than land with development rights.

In other words, even with development rights sold, properties taxes will go up (it is expected significantly in some cases). The only way to keep those taxes down is to enter the Clean and Green program.

The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau has retained the services of an expert on tax assessments and Clean and Green.

The county tax reassessment program has involved more than driving around and checking current real estate prices. In fact, it was reported that the entire county is fairly well computerized, as well as are its soil types. It has been photographed and an estimated 165,000 properties had to be assessed.

The new program is to become effective Jan. 1, 1996.

For more information, contact the Automated Valuation Services in the Lancaster County Courthouse at (717) 390-2300.

For members of the Farm Bureau (all farmers), for more information, contact Earl Newcomer, county Farm Bureau board member, at (717) 872-2646; or Jane Balmer, county Farm Bureau president, at (717) 653-5916.

Lancaster Cattle Feeder's Day Set

The Lancaster County Cattle Feeder's Day is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 31, at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster. The theme for this year's event is "Addressing Beef Industry Issues."

Featured this year will be a panel discussion, entitled "Zero Tolerance - Insights and Obstacles", moderated by Penn State Cooperative Extension Red Meats Specialist Dr. Bill Henning. This important meat industry issue focuses on the reduction of bacterial contamination in our meat supply.

"Zero Tolerance," a topic of concern for cattle feeders, packers, suppliers, and consumers, will be addressed by a panel of industry-wide representatives. Sharing their expertise will be K. T. Miller, director of consumer affairs for Monfort at Greeley, Colo.; Billy Lloyd, National Cattleman's Association, Englewood, Colo.; Myron Stoltzfus, Stoltzfus Meats, Intercourse, Pa.; and Walter Olsted, Food Safety and Inspection Service, USDA, Philadelphia.

Research scientist Dr. Frances Fluharty of the Ohio State University will present "Ration Formulation for Incoming Cattle": based on research conducted at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center Feedlot at Wooster. Penn State Extension Veterinarian Dr. Tom Drake will present "Proper Handling of Cattle Vaccines" to keep producers updated on Beef Quality Assurance practices.

Always a highlight of Cattle Feeders Day, the "Cattle and Feed Outlook" will be presented by H. Louis Moore, Penn State extension economist, and Dave Ivan, Pennsylvania Beef Council executive director, will highlight the Council's activities and explain the "Beef Industry Long-Range Plan."

The event will begin at 8:30 a.m. with exhibit visitation and the program starts promptly at 9:30 a.m. This meeting conducted by the Penn State Cooperative Extension concludes at 3 p.m. with a question and answer session. For additional information, call Chester D. Hughes, (717) 394-6851.

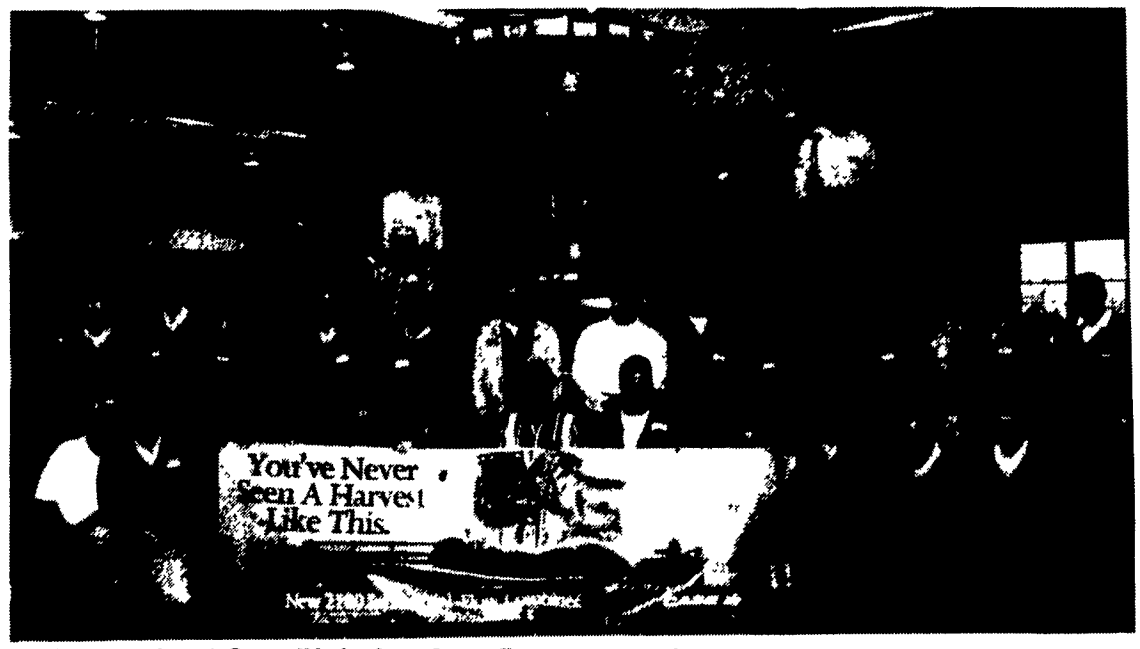
Case IH Introduces New Combine To Local Dealers

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Fifty regional Case IH dealers from a five-state area met at the Lebanon Fairgrounds last Thursday and Friday to learn about the new inovations in their products for 1995. The unveiling of the new Case IH 2100 Series Axial-Flow combines was one of the special events at the meeting. The 2100 Series Axial-Flow combines feature an all-new cab as well as upgraded electronics, hydraulics, and power train.

Harold Bower, area sales manager, said the meetings were held to introduce the new features of the equipment and give sales and technical training to the dealers.

For more than two years, Case has brought owners of Case IH and competitive brands of combines to its combine manufacturing plant in East Moline, Ill., to review the design and construction of its machines. Case has also sent engineers and manufacturing personnel into the field with dealers and customers to gather information and feedback about equipment performance and features. Customer imput obtained from these activities has been used to develop the new line of combines.

Attending the dealer meeting were C.B. Hoober, Intercourse; Hoober Equipment, Middletown, Del.; Eckroth Bro., New Ringold; H & E Equipment, Dover, Del.; Elliott Equipment and Hardware, Easton, Md; Carlisle Farm Service, Carlisle; Chambersburg Farm Equipment, Chambersburg; Leatherbury Equipment, Cheriton, Va.; White's Farm Supply, Canastota, N.Y.; J. C. Lucas, Cazenovia, N.Y.; Columbia Tractor Inc., Claverack, N.Y.; Ashland Implement, Inc. Richmond, Va.



Fifty regional Case IH dealers from five states gather around a new 2100 Series Axial-Flow combine at the Lebanon Fairgrounds. The dealers met for a sales and technical information meeting.

Atlantic District Three Meeting Held

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The annual meeting of District 3 of the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative was held Tuesday. Robert McSparran, director, said that ADC continued to pay over-order premiums, but it is not a guaranteed thing for the future.

"The price of milk is not good," McSparran said. But it would have been worse if you didn't get the over-order premium. We can't expect the rise in population to continue to consume all the additional milk we are producing. And milk is comming from Texas and New Mexico into Florida. I cannot help but think this will put additional pressure on milk supplies in the east.

Richard Norton, general manager, MAMMA, the milk promotion group, said activities for milk promotion include advertising, school food service, supermarket promotion, public relations and nutrition education. He said the promotional campeign has taken on the theme of "Milk, help yourself." This is a continuation of the "Milk, fitness you can drink," and "Milk, it does a body good."

Robert Dever, CEO, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, said the cooperative was successful in 1994 and noted that the trend was toward larger processors. Ten processors buy almost all of the milk produced by Atlantic members, and five of those large companies buy 75-80 percent of the milk.

Dever said this trend is expected to continue, but said this was not necessarily bad because these companies were using milk and milk products as one of the segments of the food distribution.

He predicted that milk prices will be lower in 1995 from 1994 because of growing production and excess of supply. He also said high support prices from government probably will be nonexistant in the future.

Young Bros. represented by Ray Young accepted the 50 year member award. Little Briton Agri Supply was award the top quality premium award for meeting the quality requirements for 12 consecutive months.

In the election of officers, and delegates, the following members were named. In the Delta Local, Harry Bickel, president; Leonard Greek, vice president; and David Druck, secretary/treasurer. Delegates are Bickel, delegate and Greek alternate.

In the Southern Lancaster Local, Scott Kreider, president; Millie Widmann, vice president; and Jay Ranck, secretary/treasurer. Delegates are Willis Nolt; Widmann; Matthew Young; Glenn Aument; James Long, Edward Zug; and Ray Young. Alternates are, Jay Ranck; James Hess; Dwayne Peifer; Robert Wentworth; Ken Wiker; Don Trimble; Bob Wagner; and Carl Kreider.

The 50-year award was presented to Young Bro. From left, Edward Zug, president; Ray Young, accepting the award; and Robert McSparran, director.

Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative

cooperatives, "... and remember from whom prosperity comes."

In general, the membership received a higher price per hundredweight for its milk this past year, as well as marketing more milk than ever.

The cooperative also received a better contract for its leased tractor rigs, both on the straight lease price and the mileage rate which adds to a savings of $10,000 for the year, according to Earl Dehmey, fieldman and manager for the cooperative.

Additionally, a new fleet of Peterbuilt tractors are being leased, with the Ryder Co. taking back the 1993 models. According to Dehmey, Ryder has been very pleased with the maintenance and care of the leased equipment, and thus is rewarding that with newer vehicles to lease, while it uses the other ones in another part of its rental business.

An extra tractor is being added to the nine the cooperative has used, to bring the number of tractors up to 10, because of the increased in membership.

Further, Dehmey said that not a drop of the cooperatives milk was dumped because of last winter's storms, despite the fact that drivers and farmers had some close calls and tricky situations.

It was also announced that the cooperative has sold its Mt. Joy office and has purchased a tract of land just outside the borough's boundary lines on which to construct a building for an office, rest rooms, work area, and a two-bay garage for trucks.

In fact, part of the change to the bylaws — which were the original ones passed when the cooperative was founded in 1934, according to the legal representative briefing the membership on the changes — was made so that the cooperative can build its headquarters outside of the borough lines. The original bylaws restricted the location to within the borough's borders.

Work on the new headquarters is expected to begin this spring. Occupancy is anticipated to occur during the summer. In the meantime, the cooperative is renting the offices it sold.

According to a note in the cooperative's financial statement, the cooperative paid $38,891 in addition to an exchange of land and buildings for land. The deal was completed Dec. 28.

As far as the bylaws changes, each member was provided a copy of the proposed revisions in advance of the banquet and meeting.

Additional changes to the bylaws include a change in the statement of the purpose of the cooperative, which is to market milk; to change the bylaws to provide flexibility in setting when the annual meeting can be held; to increase the membership quorum from 15 percent membership to 25 percent; to change the nominating process to allow committee review; to increase the limit of the amount of money the management of the cooperative can borrow without member approval from $25,000, as set in 1934, to $500,000; a change of three articles to reflect modern federal tax codes and provide details for how profits are distributed to members, and how tax liability is shared by members; and a change so that the liability for directors is such that they can not be sued for acting in a reasonable manner on behalf of the cooperative.

It was also reported that the level of required member equity has been reduced significantly over the past several years to its current level of $5,028. Members were also encouraged to use their annual report in doing business to show the strength of the organization to which they belong.

Dehmey also said that three member-producers have expanded their operations during the past year, while 12 installed larger milk tanks, in order to reduce the number of tanker pickups required (it reduces the cost for the producers and the cooperative).

He said that the FDA spot check rating for the cooperative was 91 percent (85 percent required), and that another check is coming, so members have to keep on top of maintaining clean equipment and proper procedures.

Dehmey also said that inspection sheets are expected to change slightly, and that before any members change things on the farm, they should give him a call, to make sure that the proposed work doesn't create a problem for passing inspection.

It was also announced that the cooperative has undergone a change in image — it has adopted a new farm sign which depicts a cow at the top and a milk truck at the bottom of the sign. The signs are available through the cooperative.

In other business, the cooperative's top 10 producers were also announced. The top five include Kenneth Zurin, whose operation produced 6,103,316 pounds of milk; John Landis, 5,770,618 pounds; Arlin Benner, 3,791,401 pounds; Meadow Vista, 3,553,441 pounds; and Brubaker Brothers (Luke and James), 3,377,598 pounds of milk.

Overall, the cooperative shipped 168,178,061 pounds of milk in its 1994 fiscal year, although the cooperative's production actually rose above that because of the addition of members.

Four cooperators received recognition for earning either a 10-cent per cwt., or a 20-cent per cwt. premium for 12 consecutive months. There were Harold Witmer, Lester Weaver, Kenneth Zurin, and Alwine Farms. In addition, 16 members were recognized for earning premiums for 11 consecutive months.

County Dairy Princess Amy Espenshade, whose parents are cooperative members, addressed the group telling of her observations of how urban sprawl has been overtaking the landscape, putting pressure on the farming community in many ways, in addition to low milk prices and soaring overhead costs, and expert-recommended additional purchases of such items as computers so farmers can stay competitive.

She said her parents' farm has been in her family for 125 years, and she hopes it continues. However, she said she expects the strength of the cooperative to help keep the farming community viable in the area.

In other election results, Robert Brandt was re-elected to the board of directors.

Here are the facts why ULTRAFLO® outperforms chain feeders

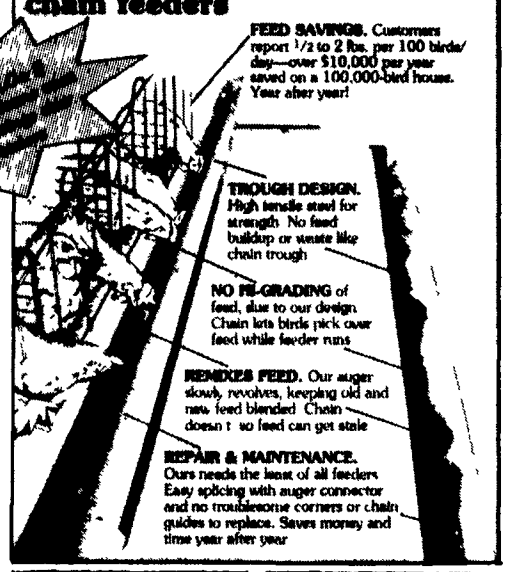
FEED SAVINGS. Customers report 1/2 to 2 lbs. per 100 birds/day—over $10,000 per year saved on a 100,000-bird house. Year after year!

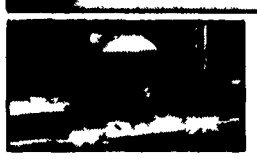
TROUGH DESIGN. High tensile steel for strength. No feed buildup or waste like chain trough.

NO RE-GRADING of feed, due to our design. Chain lets birds pick over feed while feeder runs.

REMIXES FEED. Our auger slowly revolves, keeping old and new feed blended. Chain doesn't so feed can get stale.

REPAIR & MAINTENANCE. Ours needs the least of all feeders. Easy splicing with auger connector and no troublesome corners or chain guides to replace. Saves money and time year after year.





SIMPLE OPERATION. "Push-Pull" Power Units with low HP motor are located along the feeder line as needed.

EASY AUGER CONNECTOR. Allows fast and simple installation, also quick and easy repair of auger if ever necessary.

Remodel with Chore-Time and you can have more birds, better performance and less maintenance. Chore-Time's 4 tier, 20 inch deep Duratrims are the same width as 3 tier dropping board systems and 4 tier reverse cages. Go from 60,000 birds to 80,000 birds.

Over 80% of the nation's top egg producers* have already switched to Chore-Time cages with ULTRAFLO® Feeders!*

Egg producers have been putting up with obsolete chain feeders far too long. Now there's a better way. Chore Time's proven ULTRAFLO Cage Feeding System. Since introduction, more than 80% of the top 54 egg producers* have gone to ULTRAFLO. A lot of smaller ones have too.

They've all looked at the advantages and chosen ULTRAFLO. That's because it makes them more profitable. Total egg production and egg size—these are the best benefits of our complete feeding system.

Why not check out the facts for yourself? Contact us now—or ask any producer who owns ULTRAFLO.

Because the only negative comments about our feeding system come from our competition—not from our customers.

The district meeting season for the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association is underway, with 10 remaining meetings scheduled from Jan. 30 through Feb. 3. The meetings are held every year around the state, corresponding to the 18 director districts, primarily for directors of local DHIA committees/boards. They serve as an opportunity for directors and management to get together for discussion of issues and developments affecting DHIA members statewide. Election of directors to the state board is also done at the meetings. Anyone interested in attending the meeting in their district may contact their county committee or local board. The meetings begin at 9:30 a.m., and end after lunch.

LEBANON® EXTRA
Granulated Starter Fertilizer

"THERE'S MORE TO IT THAN JUST NPK"

For over 47 years, farmers throughout the Mid-Atlantic Area from New York to Virginia have produced millions of dollars of crops using Lebanon Extra fertilizer.

Lebanon Extra is an ammoniated, homogenous. granular NPK fertilizer. With the increased emphasis on using less and precise applications of plant food, Lebanon Extra provides the nutrient sources that you can depend on, and not just NPK but also secondary and six micro-nutrients. The nutrient integrity of Lebanon Extra is superior to bulk blend fertilizer products. When using row applications or banding accurate amounts of plant food it can be important to use a safe, quality, uniform grade product. If you are using a blend with MAP compare the value of Lebanon Extra.

Grain Marketing Meetings Set

NEWARK, Del. — The University of Delaware and Delaware State University Cooperative Extension are sponsoring grain marketing meetings in Kent and New Castle counties.

These meetings will be held twice each day, from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. in the Kent County extension office, Route 13, Dover, and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the UD Fischer Greenhouse Laboratory on South College Avenue in Newark.

Following is a schedule of dates and topics:

- Feb. 1—understanding and using basis in grain marketing.
- Feb. 15—cash marketing, including spot prices, deferred delivery, deferred payment, basis contract, no price established or storage contract, and minimum price contract.
- March 2—the use of futures (hedging) to forward-price grain or soybeans.
- March 15—grain merchants panel discussion, developing a marketing plan, and using on-farm storage.

Farmland Sells For $736,700

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — More than 120 people gathered last week during a sale of two parcels of the Walter Carpenter Farm in Warwick Township, totalling a little more than 97 acres, which brought a total of $736,700.

The auction, conducted by E.M. Murry Associates, Lititz, included 89.57 acres of farmland and a 7.5-acre parcel, both of which front East Woods Drive. A farm house, barn, and outbuildings were included in the sale.

The 89.57-acre tract was sold for $545,000 to Wayne Seachrist, Pierson Road, Lititz, according to a spokesman for E.M. Murry Associates.

The other tract totalling 7.5 acres was sold to John Hartz, Woods Rd., Lititz, for $191,700. The tract of land was advertised as having development possibilities.

Lancaster County Dairy Princess On The 'Moov'

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Motorists who spot a dark gray Nissan with the license plate, "Moov It," will notice that the driver is on the "moov."

That's because driver Amy Espenshade is the Lancaster County Dairy Princess who has places to go and things to do.

She's either dashing from one promotion to another or hurrying home to milk the cows or commuting to Penn State — York Campus, where she is a freshman.

"Some weeks I have a promotion every evening, but then it may go a week or two between promotions," Amy said.

While responsibilities with dairy promotion vary, her home and college responsibilities are constant.

Amy, 18, is on the dean's list at college and she manages to work almost full-ume of the family's Elizabethtown farm.

Her parents, Harvey and Susan Espenshade, have always incorporated the help of Amy and her siblings Matt, 21, and Becky, 17.

Now, that Matt is in his senior year at Penn State main campus, Amy has needed to fill in a bit more.

"I feed the calves and help dad milk," Amy said.

The family milks about 50 cows and farms 140 acres of their own land plus 120 acres of rented ground.

College is easier than she expected but dairy princesses duties require more time that she expected.

"But I love being a dairy princess," Amy said as she flashes one of her generously dimpled smiles.

"I just love the kids when I do school promotions. If I give them a sucker, they are just in awe. They think that I'm Miss America."

Even the older adults seem mermeshed by Amy's skit in which she pretends she's a cow.

"I'm proud to be part of the dairy industry," she said. "I always appreciated how hard my dad works but now I see that many people affiliated with the dairy industry such as the DHIA are working hard even if they aren't milking cows."

This appreciation extends to other non-dairy commodities.

"Before I was dairy princess, I thought that dairy people had it worse than any other agriculture-related commodity. But I've met the honey queen, the poultry queen, the lamb and wool queen, and others representing commodities and I realize that each industry has its struggles just like the dairy industry," she said.

Concerning the debate over the use of BST, Amy said, "I'm convinced BST is safe for people and for cows, but I don't think we need it because we already have a surplus of milk."

The prices farmers receive for their hard work are discouraging to Amy. She said, "My dad told me that we're lucky if we make $13 for 100 weight of milk."

Despite the pay, Amy enjoys farm work.

Matt, who is majoring in dairy science at Penn State, will graduate this spring and return to the family's century farm, which has been in the family for 128 years.

"There's always something to do around here with the upkeep needed," Amy said. "We need to build a heifer barn and we'd like to get a pipeline because we have a dumping station now."

But those are long-term goals. Doing some cosmetic work to the outside of the house and redoing the porch are first on the agenda. Amy and her father just completed repainting the kitchen with its wide woodwork typical of homes built in 1857.

Work on the farm continues by using stone dust bedding for the cows.

Amy said, "It works great because it spreads easily on the fields. It doesn't stick to the cows like newspaper bedding. It keeps things dry."

Recently, some contour farming was designed for the back fields. Most of the field work is done by the men on the farm but Amy sometimes hauls the wagons. Sister Becky feeds the heifers, cleans stalls, and throws down hay.

Amy's mother works full time as a nurse and helps feed calves and put on the milkers.

Matt's return from college is just in time, because Amy needs to head to the main campus next year to pursue her major in horticulture.

"I'm considering a double major by adding turf grass science," she said.

Amy's decision to make lawn care her career is an outgrowth of being in charge of lawn care and bedding plants around the farm.

"I love mowning lawn, but my dad tells me that 50 years of mowing lawns could get pretty old. If I get tired of lawns I could go in the greenhouse business," said Amy, who has her sights on owning her own business.

Amy graduated from Elizabethtown High School, where she received numerous FFA awards and placed first in the state for ag salesmen during her senior year. This enabled her to attend the FFA National Convention in Kansas City. In 10th grade, she also was able to attend as part of the meat judging team.

Something new on the horizon for Amy is her engagement to Mike Bryant. The couple plans to marry when Amy graduates in 1998.

She and Bryant are in the process of becoming junior high youth advisers at their church — another responsibility that keeps Amy on the "moov."

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Amy Espenshade is on the "moov" as she hurries from farm to college to dairy promotions and back again.

Amy's family includes parents, Harvey and Susan, and siblings Matt, 21, and Becky, 17.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Amy pours a glass of cold milk and says, "I'm proud to be part of the dairy industry."

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

If power fails during a winter storm or if someone accidentally unplugs the freezer or leaves the freezer door ajar you may find yourself with hundreds of dollars worth of food that has thawed.

How can you minimize your loss should this disaster strike? You may not be able to use these tips now, but keep them on hand just in case:

• If you know that the power has just been erupted, avoid that first impluse to open the freezer door.

When you let warm room air into your freezer you're cutting the time the remaining food will stay cold. The time to open the door to check food quality is when the freezer is back in operation and you expect that the power is on to stay.

• Try to estimate the length of time your freezer will be off.

When the freezer stops running, the power supply may be off or the freezer itself may be out of order. If the power is off, try to find out from the electric utility that serves you how long it will be off. If power is expected to be out for more than eight hours, you may need to take steps to keep your food from spoiling.

With the freezer closed, food in a fully-loaded cabinet usually stays frozen for two days; in a cabinet with less than half a load, it may not stay frozen for more than a day. Bear in mind, also, that a freezer full of meat or frozen liquids won't warm up as fast as a freezer full of bread and bakery items.

• Keep freezer contents as cold as possible and get dry ice if you can.

If the power fails to return within a day or two, use dry ice to keep the temperature below freezing and to prevent deterioration or spoilage of frozen food. If you obtain dry ice soon after the power has been interrupted, 25 pounds in an almost full 10-cubic foot cabinet should hold the temperature below freezing for three to four days; less than half a load should keep for two to three days.

If you experience frequent, long-lasting power failures in your area, you might consider buying a standby generator. Other possibilities: you may want to rent freezer space from a commercial locker or use a portion of a friend's or relative's freezer space.

• Assess the damage to the food.

Occasionally, frozen foods will thaw partially or completely before you discover the freezer isn't working. The important considerations in refreezing foods are the temperature at which foods thawed and how long they were held after thawing.

You can safely refreeze frozen foods that have thawed if they still contain ice crystals. If foods have been held at less than 35-40° F, no longer than one or two days after thawing, they are fit to use immediately. Foods warmed to 40° F or higher for over two hours should be thrown out—excxept for hard cheeses, fruits or fruit juices, baked goods, flour and nuts. Check these foods carefully, however, for any signs of spoilage.

Even partial thawing and refreezing reduces the quality of most foods. Foods frozen and thawed require the same care as foods that have never been frozen. Do use thawed foods as quickly as possible.

You can safely refreeze meat, poultry and seafood if these items still contain ice crystals and feel as cold as they would be under refrigeration. Be sure to examine each package carefully, and, remember, when in doubt throw it out.

• Refreeze "safe" food quickly.

The faster refreezing occurs, the safer the product and the better the quality. If there is any question about the integrity of the wrap, rewrap.

Thawing and refreezing will diminish the eating quality of most food. Freezer burn becomes more likely when food has thawed and is subsequently refrozen; "burned" portions should be cut away before further preparation takes place. To compensate for quality deterioration in safety refrozen foods (quality changes may include both mushiness and hot food toughness), use moist heat cooking methods like stewing or braising, or incorporate these items into soups or casseroles.

To refreeze food at home, turn the adjustable temperature control to its coldest position. When the current comes on again, the freezer will run continuously and food will freeze more quickly. Pile the food so air can circulatre around the packages.

It's safest to put no more unfrozen food in the home freezer than will freeze within 24 hours. Overloading slows down the rate of freezing, and foods that freeze too slowly may lose quality.

There are a myriad of possible answers to that provocative query made famous some years back on television commercials for a popular fast-food restaurant chain.

"Where's the beef?!"

In the case of our immediate surroundings, we might find the beef at any number of possible sites.

(However, we usually think of them, not as the beef, but more personally, as "our girls." Only on occasion, when some particular cow has stomped the milker off for the third time during milking and plastered me in the face with a wet, sloppy tail, do I make threats about hamburger.)

So, on any given day, the beef might be exiting the dairy barn, reentering the dairy barn for evening milking, parading to the feed bunk, lounging around the exercise pastures, or even keeping appointments with the veterinarian.

One of my personal favorites of the ever-changing farm scenes visible through the kitchen windows is the younger beef, our heifer herd, traveling single file up through the meadow from the lower meadow, to take their turn at the feed bunk. Whether surrounded by a January snow scene, the lush green of May, or autumn's golden brilliance, the daily appearance of the string of heifers is like a visit by a close friend.

The baby beef are my special responsibility, our bottle calves who bawl enthusiastic greetings morning and evening the instant they hear footsteps at the calf barn entrance. You never have to wonder where the beef is when they're babies; they'll tell you.

Other answers to "Where's the beef" might include the freezer, the refrigerator, inside a hamburger bun, snuggled up in a stirfry, or nestled beside the carrots and potatoes of a pot roast.

Not to mention on the outside grills of our neighbors, who routinely put something on to sizzle up for summertime suppers just as we are finishing up evening milking. After two hours of milking, fortified only with a quick snack, the enticing aromas wafting down from those grills of our nearby neighbors leave no doubts about where the beef is.

So we are, on a daily basis, surrounded by the "beef." Which leads us to one rude reality - there are a significant number of undesirable answers to the question: "Where's the beef?"

Like running across the back yard.

Especially when the back yard is at the mud-level of ours on a recent damp, dreary day, when I glanced out a window and spied two big dairy cows loping across the soggy sod. Enroute to corral the runaway beef, I ran across a few more of their friends, also enjoying recess.

The "beef" all take personal pride in eluding anyone who tries to chase them. Waiting until the chasee is within a few feet, they'll lay their ears back, throw their tails in the air and kick their heels as they take off. While thus departing, they gouge inch-deep skid marks in the lawn.

Chasing the dancing beef around the yard came right on the heels of a similar incident a day or so before. I opened the door to the heifer pens under the old bank barn and came face-to-muzzle with some thirty teenage bovines who had spent part of the night partying in the feed alleyway, having found a loose gate. During their stay, they totally wiped out a couple of bags of feed, scattered a half-dozen bales of good alfalfa and trashed everything that they didn't gobble up.

Thus, the next time you hear the question, "Where's the beef?", you can be ready with this answer.

National WIFE Delegates To Meet

JETMORE, Kan. — National Delegates of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) will travel to Kansas City to attend their Annual Winter Board Meeting scheduled for Feb. 10-12.

Delegates from 25 states are expected to be in attendance at the organization's first meeting of the new year.

WIFE, organized in 1976, is committed to improving profitability in production agriculture through educational, legislative, communicative, and cooperative efforts. As a grassroots organization, WIFE believes the American people and policy makers need to be made more aware of the importance of agriculture to the security and well-being of the nation.

National WIFE President Mary Ann Sheppard of Alabama explained, "The 1995 Farm Bill strategy for Women Involved in Farm Economics will be the most important issue for delegates attending the board of directors meeting. Step one of WIFE's plan should be completed. At the close of this meeting, WIFE members will be ready to testify in Washington, D.C. and at field hearings across the country when called upon."

Congressman Pat Roberts, U.S. representative from the Kansas First Congressional District, has been invited to speak to the WIFE Board of Directors concerning agriculture and the '95 Farm Bill.

Congressman Roberts is the first Republican chairman of the House Agriculture Committee since 1954. His efforts for leadership in agriculture have been recognized by numerous business and agriculture groups, including Kansas Wheat Growers, Kansas Farm Bureau, FFA, Production Credit Association, and Public Voice.

Robert Fenemore, environmental scientist from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in Kansas City, will speak to WIFE members on groundwater and agriculture regulations. He is acting director for the Office of Groundwater Protection. Fenemore's other duties consist of risk assessment facilitator, regional pollution prevention coordinator, and primary regional agriculture contact. He is also involved in 1995 Farm Bill issues and developing EPA's position on the bill.

Marty Strange will address WIFE board of directors on vertical integration. He is the program director and co-founder of the Center for Rural Affairs in Walthill, Neb. The center is a nonprofit organization devoted to the economic, social and environmental well-being of rural America. Strange's book, "Family Farming: A New Economic Vision," is regarded as one of the leading critiques of industrial agribusiness. He is the recipient of a 1992 Public Achievement Award from Common Cause.

Ice Cream Festival To Raise Money For Library

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The 1995 Turkey Hill Old-Fashioned Ice Cream Festival is scheduled for Sunday, July 16, from 1-5 p.m. at Lancaster Square, near the Brunswick Hotel in downtown Lancaster. Turkey Hill Dairy will underwrite all festival expenses and donate ticket proceeds to the Library System of Lancaster County. Proceeds are used to purchase hundreds of children's books for the county's 17 library units.

A giant quilt, composed of squares made by Lancaster County children, will be unveiled. Plus festival-goers can buy a chance to win a beautiful hand sewn quilt designed exclusively for the Festival.

Included among the ice cream cones, sundaes, and frozen yogurt, Turkey Hill will imprint its own style on the festival with special ice cream flavors and a variety of iced teas and Tea Coolers.

In addition to a variety of ice cream concoctions, the event will include entertainment and family-oriented activities ranging from dancers and demonstrations to big band sounds, hands-on activities and travelling entertainers. The festival will be held rain or shine.

Over the years, the Ice Cream Festival has raised a total of more than $113,000 for the Library System of Lancaster County. Ice cream lovers from throughout Pennsylvania and bordering states traditionally converge on Lancaster for this event.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This winter we have again started a job that I do not especially relish and that is working on things that I've stored in the attic. Over a period of some 40 years whenever I had things, that I didn't need, they would be put in a box or a bag and carried up those wooden steps.

Now it is time to look through some of those toys, clothes and magazines. What to throw away, what to share and what to keep? That is a big problem! Most of the clothes no one except a "down and out" person would want. Another question is who belongs to the big teddy bear and who claims the little teddy bear? Should old calendars be saved and old yard sticks? There are so many decisions before we burn things. Even the rolls of new wallpaper and odd pieces of new carpet are hard for me to part with but my husband doesn't mind getting rid of them.

All of this sorting takes a lot of time as some boxes are a grand assortment of pieces of puzzles, boxes of crayons and parts of broken toys. So, I clean and sort them.

My parents left a lot of things on our attic and they're still there. The skirt to a round coal stove, an antique three-legged table, part of a bird cage and so much more. Even big bags of cork curls that at one time filled a big bag that they slept on — should they be burned?

Several chairs that were broken by our boisterous boys still wait for someone to repair them. So far, I have not convinced my husband that that would be a good job for him and his workshop this winter. What doesn't get done this year will have to wait for next year.

Beef — It's What's For Dinner

Today's beef is a nutritional bargain. This means it has significant amounts of several important nutrients compared to the calories it contains. Beef provides nutrients that are essential for good health such as iron, zinc, protein, and five of the B-complex vitamins, including thiamine, niacin, riboflavin, B-6, and B-12.

Health professionals say it's important to eat a variety of foods to get these and other needed nutrients and at the same time not consume too many calories, too much fat, cholesterol, sugar, and sodium.

The average 3-ounce cooked, trimmed serving of beef contains about 8.4 grams of fat. To visualize, a 3-ounce serving is about the size of a deck of cards or the palm of an average-size woman's hand.

For less fat, look for lean cuts of beef such as those with loin or round in the name. Trim fat before cutting beef into strips or cubes for stir-fry or kabobs. Use low-fat cooking methods.

A great cookbook for beef lovers is available from the Beef Council. The featured recipe on this page includes details on how to obtain a copy of the cookbook. It's a great source for cooking great tasting, healthful meals for every occasion.

Of course, our readers have favorites to that you'll want to make sure to try.

MEXICALI BARBECUED STEAKS

Total preparation and cooking time: 20 minutes

4 boneless beef top loin or rib eye steaks, cut 1 inch thick
Glaze: 1/2 cup mild or medium prepared salsa
1/4 cup ketchup
2 tablespoons packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard

1. In small bowl, combine glaze ingredients; mix until blended. Reserve 1/2 cup.

2. Place beef steaks on grid over medium coals. Grill 12 to 16 minutes for medium-rare to medium doneness, turning once. Brush both sides of steaks with remaining glaze during last 4 to 5 minutes of grilling time.

3. Trim fat from steaks. Carve steaks crosswise into thick slices.

Serve with reserved glaze.

Makes 4 servings.

DELICIOUS SWISS STEAK

Steak (amount required for meal)
½ cup flour
1 tablespoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons salt
3 carrots, diced
3-4 potatoes, diced
1½ cups canned tomatoes
Chopped onion, to taste
1 tablespoon cooking sherry

Mix together mustard, flour, and salt. Pound dry mixture into steak, covering both sides. Brown on both sides. Place steak and drippings in roasting pan. Cover with diced potatoes, carrots, and onion. Spread tomatoes on top, covering all the other vegetables. Sprinkle sherry over all. Dash of additional salt. Cover pan tightly with aluminum foil. Bake at 375 degrees for 2 hours or until steak is tender.

My brother and I along with our parents own and operate Mountain Springs farm in RD Aaronsburg (Centre County). We raise Angus beef cattle, Simmental beef cattle and Angus/Simmental cross. This recipe is one of our favorites. No matter how large the amount I make, there is never any leftovers.

MUFFIN TIN MEATLOAVES & QUICK PARMESAN MASHED POTATOES

Total preparation and cooking time: 30 minutes

1-1/2 pounds lean ground beef
1-1/2 cups shredded zucchini
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup ketchup

1. Heat oven to 400°. In a large bowl, combine all ingredients except ketchup, mixing lightly but thoroughly. Place approximately 1/3 cup beef mixture into each of 12 medium muffin cups, pressing lightly; spread ketchup over tops.

2. Bake in 400° oven 20 minutes or until no longer pink and juices run clear.

3. Meanwhile prepare Quick Parmesan Mashed Potatoes. Remove meatloaves from pan; serve with potatoes.

LEMON PEPPER BEEF STEAK & POTATO WEDGES

Total preparation and cooking time: 30 minutes

1-1/2-pound boneless beef top sirloin steak, cut 1-1/4 inches thick

Steak Seasoning:

3 large cloves garlic, crushed
2 teaspoons dried oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon lemon pepper

Potato Wedges:

1 tablespoon olive oil
1/2 teaspoon lemon pepper
3 all-purpose potatoes, each cut into 6 lengthwise wedges

1. Combine steak seasoning ingredients; press into both sides of beef steak.

2. In medium bowl, combine oil and 1/2 teaspoon lemon pepper. Add potatoes; toss to coat.

3. Place steak on one side of rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat; arrange potatoes on the other side. Broil 18 to 21 minutes until steak is medium rare to medium doneness and potatoes are tender, turning steak and potato wedges once.

4. Trim fat from steak. Carve steak crosswise into slices; serve with potatoes.

Makes 6 servings (serving size: 1/6 of recipe).

HONEY-MUSTARD GLAZED STEAKS WITH GRILLED ONIONS

Seasoned honey-mustard glaze is delicious on both the steak and onions, especially mingled with the subtle smokey flavor imparted by grilling. Serve with mixed green salad.

Total preparation and cooking time: 30 minutes

4 boneless beef top loin steaks, cut 1-inch thick
2 large onions, cut into ½-inch thick pieces

Honey-Mustard Glaze

⅓ cup honey mustard
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon fresh rosemary, snipped or 1 teaspoon dried rosemary, crushed
1 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger
½ teaspoon coarse grind black pepper

1. In small bowl, combine glaze ingredients; mix well.

2. Place beef steaks and onions on grid over medium coals. Generously brush both sides of steaks and onions with glaze. Grill 9 to 12 minutes until steaks are rare to medium doneness and onions are tender, turning once.

3. Trim fat from steaks. Carve steaks crosswixe into thick slices; serve with grilled onions.

UPDATED BEEF STROGANOFF

Total preparation and cooking time: 25 minutes

1 pound beef tenderloin tips
1-1/2 cups uncooked farfalle (bow tie) pasta
Vegetable cooking spray
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
8 ounces mushrooms, cut into 1/2-inch slices
1/3 cup coarsely chopped onion
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
1 to 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
3/4 cup ready-to-serve beef broth
1 tablespoon sliced green onion
1/4 cup dairy light sour cream

1. Cook pasta according to package directions. Keep warm.

2. Meanwhile trim fat from beef; cut into 1.x 1/2-inch pieces. Spray large nonstick skillet with cooking spray. Heat skillet over medium-high heat until hot. Add beef (1/2 at a time) and stir-fry 1 to 2 minutes or until outside surface is no longer pink. Remove from skillet; keep warm. Season with salt and pepper.

3. In same skillet, cook and stir mushrooms and onion in oil 2 minutes or until tender. Stir in flour. Gradually add broth, stirring until blended. Bring to a boil; cook and stir 2 minutes. Return beef to skillet; heat through.

4. Serve beef mixture over pasta. Sprinkle with green onion; pass sour cream to dollop on top.

Makes 4 servings (serving size: 1/4 of recipe).

Nutritional information per serving: 344 calories; 30 g protein; 13 g fat; 25 g carbohydrate; 4.9 mg iron; 344 mg sodium; 77 mg cholesterol. (Complete nutritionals available upon request.)

Cook's Tip: One-pound boneless beef top sirloin steak cut 3/4 inch thick, may be substituted for beef tenderloin tips. Cut steak lengthwise in half and then crosswise into 1/4-inch thick strips.

SAVORY MEATLOAF

2 pounds ground beef
8-ounce can stewed tomatoes
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 eggs
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1¼ cups shredded wheat biscuits, crushed
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Lightly mix together all ingredients. Shape into a loaf and place in a baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees for one hour. Makes 12 slices

I got this recipe off the shredded wheat box years ago. I made one modification to suit my husband who doesn't like cooked tomatoes. I use a can of tomato soup instead of stewed tomatoes. I add ¼ cup of the undiluted soup to the meat mix. Bake for 30 minutes, then mix the remaining soup with an equal amount of water and pour over the meatloaf. Bake for another 30 minutes.

SLOPPY JOES

1 pound ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1½ tablespoon all-purpose flour
1 cup Coca Cola
⅔ cup catsup
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons dry mustard

In a skillet, brown the meat and onions. Drain excess fat. Add the remaining ingredients and stir to mix. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Serve hot in hamburger buns.

SAVORY BEEF STEW WITH ROASTED VEGETABLES

Total preparation and cooking time: 2-1/2 hours

1-3/4 to 2 pounds boneless beef chuck shoulder or bottom round
1 tablespoon olive oil
3 cloves garlic, crushed
3/4 teaspoon pepper
1 can (13-3/4 to 14-1/2 ounces) ready-to-serve beef broth
2 teaspoons dried thyme leaves
Vegetable cooking spray
12 medium mushrooms
6 plum tomatoes, each cut lengthwise into quarters, seeded
3 small onions, each cut lengthwise into quarters
1-1/2 tablespoons olive oil
1-1/2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon cornstarch, dissolved in 2 tablespoons water
Chopped fresh thyme (optional)
3 cups cooked couscous

1. Trim fat from beef. Cut beef into 1-inch pieces. In Dutch oven, heat 1 tablespoon oil over medium heat until hot. Add beef and garlic (1/2 at a time) and brown evenly, stirring occasionally. Pour off drippings. Season beef with pepper; stir in broth and dried thyme. Bring to a boil; reduce heat to low. Cover tightly and simmer 1-1/2 to 2 hours or until beef is tender.

2. Meanwhile heat oven to 425°. Lightly spray 15 x 10-inch jelly roll pan with cooking spray. Place vegetables in pan. Combine 1-1/2 tablespoons oil and 1-1/2 tablespoons vinegar; drizzle over vegetables, tossing to coat. Roast in 425° oven 20 to 25 minutes or until tender.

3. Bring beef stew to a boil over medium-high heat. Add cornstarch mixture; cook and stir 2 minutes or until sauce is slightly thickened and bubbly. Stir in roasted vegetables and remaining 2 teaspoons vinegar. Sprinkle with fresh thyme, if desired.

Serve with couscous.

PEPPERY T-BONE STEAKS & CHILI CORN

Total preparation and cooking time: 30 minutes
Soaking time: 30 minutes

2 well-trimmed beef T-Bone or Porterhouse steaks, cut 1 inch thick
4 ears fresh sweet corn, in husks
1 to 2 cloves garlic, crushed
1/2 teaspoon coarse grind black pepper
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1/4 teaspoon ground cumin

1. Pull back corn husks from each ear of corn leaving husks attached to base. Remove corn silk. Fold husks back around corn; tie at end of each ear with string or strip of one of the outside corn husks. Soak corn in cold water 30 minutes.

2. Remove corn from water; place on grid over medium coals. Grill 20 minutes or until tender, turning often.

3. Meanwhile combine garlic and pepper; rub into both sides of beef steaks. Place steaks on grid 15 minutes before corn is done. Grill approximately 10 to 14 minutes for medium-rare to medium doneness, turning once.

4. Meanwhile in small bowl, combine butter, chili powder and cumin; mix until blended.

5. Remove bone; carve steaks crosswise into thick slices. Serve with corn and seasoned butter.

Makes 4 servings.

QUESTION — Robin O'Brien, Reading, would like a recipe for a hard candy with nuts called Mooshie.

QUESTION — Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, would like a recipe for a cold light as air lemon-flavored dessert served in tiny parfait glasses, which is called Lemon Melting Moments (not a pudding, but with the texture and weight of whipped cream, served in a fancy New York Restaurant in the 1970s).

QUESTION — Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, would like a recipe for garlic ring bolonga; for clear cranberry jelly that can be molded in shapes; for a yeast bread shaped like a dragon, which is sold every year at an antique shop on Church Lane, N.J. Karen writes that she has never been able to even taste one because the baker only makes two and the "help" buy them before the sale opens. The dragon appears to have an egg wash which gives a shiny golden brown color and a raisin in the eye.

QUESTION — Mrs. Wayne L. Miller, Bruceton Miles, W. Va., wants recipes using cabbage and recipes using oranges.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., would like a recipe for pancake syrup that is light in calories.

QUESTION — Anne Wiegle, Pottstown, would like a recipe for pickled herring. She wrote that years ago, her family made it by cleaning, splitting, and deheading the herring. The fish was salted and packed in barrels. The fish juice leaked out and formed the brine. She needs to know the ratio of salt to pounds of fish.

QUESTION — Marjorie Ludwig, Hegins, wrote that a few years ago a recipe was printed in this column for a compote filling that was hot and put into a hollowed-out pumpkin for serving. She mislaid the recipe and would like it again. Does anyone know to what recipe she is referring?

QUESTION — Andy Andrews, Brownstown, would like a recipe for pumpkin-flavored candy apples.

QUESTION — Do any readers have a recipe for homemade ice cream made with potatoes?

ANSWER — Becky Shires, Oxford, wanted a recipe for lemon meringue cake. Thanks to M. Sauder, Mohnton, for sending a recipe.

Lemon Meringue Cake

1 lemon cake mix
1 package lemon pie filling
5 egg whites
¾ cup confectioners' sugar

Mix cake according to directions and bake in two 9-inch pans.

Make pudding mix according to package directions. Cool.

Cool cake. Put bottom layer on oven-proof serving plate. Spread half of filling over the layer. Reat with second layer of cake and filling.

Filling:

Beat egg whites until stiff, fold in confectioners' sugar. Spread over whole cake. Bake at 425 degrees for 5 minutes or until meringue is golden brown. Cool and refrigerate.

ANSWER — Mrs. Wayne L. Miller, Bruceton Miles, W. Va., wanted a recipe for a very rich cookie dough that is crisp but not hard, which may be iced between layers and served at weddings or on other special occasions and a recipe for frosting used on wedding or birthday cakes that is not greasy. She also wants more salad dressings made from scratch. Here are several recipes from N. Martin, Bowmansville; Darlene Reiff, Ephrata; and others.

Sandwich Cookies

2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup shortening
4 eggs
½ teaspoon baking soda
3¾ cups flour
Walnuts, if desired

Mix together in order listed. Bake at 350 degrees until set. Do not overbake. Makes 4 dozen cookes. Fill with creme:

2 egg whites
1 tablespoon vanilla
4 tablespoons milk
4 tablespoons flour
4 cups confectioners' sugar
1 cup butter

Beat egg whites, add vanilla, milk, and flour. Add 2 cups confectioners' sugar and beat. Beat in 1 cup shortening and 2 cups confectioners' sugar.

Best Salad Dressing

1 cup cream
1½ cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
2 cups sugar
¼ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1 small onion

Mix together ingredients in blender. Dressing will keep up to two weeks if refrigerated.

QUICK PARMESAN MASHED POTATOES

1-1/2 pounds all-purpose potatoes, scrubbed, quartered
3 tablespoons water
3 large cloves garlic, crushed
1/3 cup low-fat milk
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
3/4 teaspoon salt

1. In 2-quart microwave-safe container, combine potatoes, water and garlic. Cover and microwave on HIGH 12 to 14 minutes or until potatoes are tender.

2. Mash potatoes until smooth. Add milk, cheese and salt, beating until light and fluffy. (If mixture becomes too thick, add additional milk, 1 tablespoon at a time.)

Makes 6 servings (serving size: 2 mini-meatloaves and 1/2 cup potatoes).

Nutritional information per serving: 330 calories; 28 g protein; 12 g fat; 29 g carbohydrate; 4.0 mg iron; 768 mg sodium; 109 mg cholesterol (Complete nutritionals available upon request.)

ASIAN BEEF SALAD

Total preparation and cooking time: 30 minutes

1-pound boneless beef top sirloin steak, cut 1 inch thick
1/2 medium red onion, cut into thin wedges
3 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro
4 cups torn mixed salad greens or thinly sliced nappa cabbage
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped peanuts (optional)

Citrus Soy Dressing:

2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons dark sesame oil
1 green serrano chili pepper, seeded, finely chopped
1 large clove garlic, crushed

1. Place beef steak on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil 14 to 17 minutes for medium-rare to medium doneness, turning once. Let stand 10 minutes. Trim fat from steak. Carve steak crosswise into slices.

2. Meanwhile in small bowl, whisk together dressing ingredients; set aside.

3. In medium bowl, combine beef, onion and cilantro. Add reserved dressing; toss to coat.

4. Arrange salad greens on serving platter; top with beef mixture. Sprinkle with peanuts, if desired. Serve immediately.

Makes 4 servings (serving size: 2 cups).

Nutritional information per serving using beef top sirloin steak: 226 calories; 28 g protein; 9 g fat; 9 g carbohydrate; 4.1 mg iron; 597 mg sodium; 76 mg cholesterol. (Complete nutritional available upon request.)

Cook's Tip: Three-quarters pound deli roast beef sliced 1/4 inch thick and cut into 1-inch wide strips, may be substituted for beef top sirloin steak.

Wallpapering Lessons

If I had it to do over again, I would do it all differently. Between Thanksgiving and Christmas (on my days off and then some...), I decided to wallpaper my kitchen. Well little did I know just how much I would learn from this experience

Oh yes, I should mention that this was my first wallpapering experience EVER. And my kitchen is not your basic, four-walls room. Mine has nine corners, five doors, two windows and a soffit. In the hasty fashion that is standard for my family, my husband and I, in one afternoon, selected and purchased the needed rolls of wallpaper, primer, and pre-paste activator. We borrowed equipment and an instructional video. Now the story begins.

We chose a country pattern with baskets of fruit on an ecru and green background. It looked great up close-just what I wanted to convert my kitchen from a blue and tan theme to an ivory and hunter green theme. What we didn't consider in the decision was how it would look from six-feet away. Just like gingham fabric "changes" color at a distance, so did this paper. The subtle green print disappeared, and the dark brown baskets dominated. We also didn't explore what it meant to have a pattern that was a 21-inch match. At times, I had to cut off 18-19 inches of paper to get to the next spot where the pattern began again. In a room with lots of windows and doors, it means waste. For us it also meant another trip to the paper store for more paper.

My husband would come home at lunch to see how I was doing. Unfortunately given my fatigue, I didn't always receive his comments in the manner that they were spoken. And the more I worked, the more I noticed the mistakes and patches; the more I struggled, the more I started to hate the brown baskets for overpowering my hunter-green print.

A project that I thought would be concluded in a weekend and two vacation days actually took that long plus three more evenings to finish. Did I happen to mention that during that time my refrigerator, kitchen table, microwave and stand were in my living room? They had been there for more than two weeks (we had a new linoleum floor put in the week before Thanksgiving).

Well not wanting to miss an opportunity to turn something bad into something good, as I hung the finals strips of paper, I began to think...life can be like hanging wallpaper. Here are the lessons I learned:

• It's good on first-time efforts to not do things perfectly so you have room for improvement in future attempts.

• A short time table for making a decision (allowing little time for planning or seeking alternatives) may result in a less-than-ideal choice.

• It's okay to simply be proud of the effort even though the resulting product may be imperfect.

• No good thing is accomplished in a single day's time.

• Things often look better from a distance.

• It takes patience and careful attention to keep "matches" from slipping apart.

• No matter what, always find something good to comment on!

• If you don't like the way things are, most of them can be changed over time.

If you're an experienced wallpaper hanger, you can appreciate these lessons. I noticed that these lessons don't just apply to wallpapering, they apply to life, too. Take time to think about how they apply to your life and your family.

P.S. Other people love how the room looks, and my hunter green linens and decorations are helping me to love it too.

Sheep Popular On Early Colonial Farms

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — While much has changed in the world since the 1700s, life in Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia, has a much slower pace.

Each morning in this historic city, the people who go to work in the various trades of the 1700s, dress and speak as though time has stood still.

They talk about how we might gain our independence from England; about the new Spanish colony in the south (now Florida); about how ridiculous it would be to have the capital city located where Washington D.C. now stands. "There's nothing there but an infested river with slimy creatures in it," says a carriage driver.

In the 1700s, Williamsburg was the capital city of this new land. And, even with all its importance, the population was only 1,800 people and 900 of these were slaves.

On the outskirts of the city were farms. Oxen, sheep and even turkeys were often seen being driven on foot through Williamsburg for an auction destination.

The most common sheep of that day was called the Leicester Longwool and this breed is still being raised in Williamsburg. It is one of the very oldest breeds of sheep from England. England was the ruler of the colonies and the governor who was the highest ranking, richest, man in the new world lived in Williamsburg.

England was somewhat snobbish about their wool fabrics and those sent to the colonies were quite costly. Most of the people living near Williamsburg had little money but desperately needed wool.

Nearly all of their clothing was made from wool. The richer people wore finer wools and the poor and the slaves wore wools made from coarser fibers.

To avoid having to purchase all of their fabrics from England, the people living in the colonies began to raise their own sheep.

George Washington, the first president of the United States, had his own flock of sheep which ranged from 600 to 900 head.

That was a large flock for one farmer, as the average farmer had only 20 to 40.

Washington loved farming and experimented with crossing various breeds of sheep to see if he could get finer wools or more meat from his animals.

The Leicester Longwool, however, remained one of the most popular wool breeds of that day.

Today, in the United States, the Merino has replaced this earlier breed. At Colonial Williamsburg, those who manage the sheep feel it is important to keep this breed alive. "We never know when some disease might wipe out all of the Merinos and we would need to rely on these older breeds," says Elaine Shirley who does a lot of the work with the sheep.

While sheep farmers today can be quite particular about the grasses on which their sheep graze, the early farmers around Williamsburg raised sheep because they were easy to feed.

Anyone with a 4-H sheep project knows parasites and worms are a problem. This is not a new problem, but the treatment is slightly different. Farmers today shove a pill down the sheep's throat to rid them of the parasites, colonists gave them tobacco juice. The worms which invaded the systems of the sheep could not tolerate the tobacco so would die and pass out of their systems.

"The sheep grazed on what grasses were growing so that is what we still let them do today," says Elaine Shirley.

Those who raise sheep today usually have a sheep shearer who travels from farm to farm each spring to shear the wool. At Colonial Williamsburg this was not an option.

Farmers could not afford this luxury and so they learned to shear their own sheep. Consequently there were more different ways to shear than there were breeds of sheep.

It has been learned by those who have researched and studied the early methods of living in the 1700s that wool was used in many more ways than we use it today.

In this city which still lives as though the calendar never shed its pages, wool is used for the same reasons as it was in those early days when George Washington and Thomas Jefferson were getting notions of independence in their heads.

Craftsmen who use wool at Williamsburg include the saddle maker, the shoe makers known as cobblers, printers, furniture makers, weavers, and even builders.

Wool was used for insulation to help keep homes warmer in the winter days which came even to this southern part of Virginia.

Saddle makers stuffed saddles with wool and furniture makers stuffed the cushions of chairs or sofas with wool.

In the print shops where the local newspaper was printed, wool was used on pads to help soak up excess ink.

Even back as far as the 1700s craftsmen learned that lanolin, was a valuable by-product of wool. By extracting the lanolin, cobblers were able to make the leather of shoes softer.

Wealthy ladies who were as concerned about their beauty as women still are today used lanolin on their skin.

Wool was woven into cloth and used to make dresses, suits, pants, skirts, and bonnets for both summer and winter. However, once the southern colonies learned how to raise and process cotton, it became more popular for warmer weather.

Anyone with a sheep project can feel proud that they are raising one of the oldest and most useful of farm animals in America.

Elaine Shirley is one of the people who take care of the sheep at Williamsburg, Virginia. Elaine, who has her degree in animal husbandry, studies about the uses of wool in colonials days. Her latest project is to learn how lanolin was extracted from wool in the 1700s.

FALLING IN LOVE WITH YOUR KIDS

February 14 is Valentine's Day — the day we express our love to our loved ones. You might also make this the day to start falling in love with your kids. You may say "But I already love my kids." I'm sure you do, but you also have to fall in love with them. There are nine basic ingredients for falling in love with your kids.

1. Spend time together

Could you fall in love with someone if you only spent an hour a day together and during that time you were fixing dinner, folding the laundry or reading a newspaper. Probably not.

It's important to spend some focused time with your child. When you set aside special time for your child he says to himself, "If my parents take this time to be with me, I must be important." There are lots of ways of spending effective time with your children.

* Take them to a special place. You'll be creating a memory by sharing a special place.

* Make a date. A regular date with each child adds to their sense of security and satisfies their need to feel special.

* "The Spotlights on Me!" Spotlight your children on days other than birthdays or special occasions. Try an activity called "Star of the Evening" on that evening the child receives the family's undivided attention at a show-and-tell session. The special child can talk about anything that is really of interest to him or her. At the end give the child a standing ovation.

2. Develop common interests.

Let children help at home to develop interests that may lead to something you both enjoy. I've always enjoyed sewing. When my daughter was very young she was allowed to create outfits for her stuffed animals and dolls. She has continued her interest in sewing and we made all her gowns for school events and she says we're going to make her wedding dress someday.

3. Play together.

One of the essential ingredients for falling in love is to have fun together. Having fun comes naturally to children, but most of us have to rekindle our playful inner child. Children like it when we lighten up and become playful.

4. Talk together.

Most parents "talk at" their children not "talk with" them. Many conversations are made up of talk such as, "Did you brush your teeth?" "Is your bed made?" "How was your day at school?" To talk with your child ask questions such as "Tell me about your trip.", "What did you like best at school today?" "How do you feel about that?" Don't ask questions that can be answered by yes or no. Also be a good listener.

5. Touch each other.

"Have you hugged your child today?" You've probably seen that bumper sticker. It's a good question to ask yourself each day. Children need to be touched and hugged on a more regular basis. Virginia Satir says we need four hugs a day for survival, eight for maintenance, and sixteen for growth. A hug can be as simple as a pat on the back, a simple squeeze, holding a hand, and cuddling.

6. Tell your children often that you love them.

Your children don't automatically feel loved simply because they are your children. They need to hear affirming statements such as "I love you just the way you are, I'm so glad you're my daughter". These affirmations need to continue even during the teenage years.

7. Treat your children as if they are the most important people in the world.

Treat your children how you would like them to treat you and others. Although children deserve the same kind of respect we give an adult friend, we often treat them like second class citizens. We talk down to them, embarrass them, order them around, and generally treat them disrespectfully. Even when we don't intend to, we build walls instead of bridges between our children and ourselves. Every time we criticize, embarrass or order them around, we cement another brick into the wall and they may eventually shut us out.

Give your unconditional love by loving your kids for who they are, not for what they do.

8. Create lasting memories.

Memories help children feel that they belong and that family is important. As a family take time to talk about traditions the family has and what new ones could be established.

D.J. Seitz holds up a white rabbit at the Belleville Poultry Auction.

Where More Than Rabbits Are Pulled From Cages

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

It takes a sense of humor to spend one day a week, every week, managing a small animal auction no matter what the weather. The warm December temperatures brought out a good number of both buyers and sellers to the Belleville Poultry Auction, managed by Rob and D.J. Seitz of Lewistown.

But the Seitz' sense of humor was still intact even when January started the new year with a cold bite. The 1:00 Wednesday auction produced a slim crowd, but dealers from Lebanon, McClure, and Altoona helped keep the bidding as brisk as the weather.

Auctioneer Jack Weaver from Saxton, Bedford County saw the line of rabbits ducks, chickens, and pigeons sold and shipped out by 2:00.

"We average 2-300 head each week," said D.J. Seitz. "Spring is our biggest time."

D.J. and her husband Rob began managing the Belleville Poultry Auction in November of 1994. They are livestock dealers who also own the Sunnybrook Rabbitry near Lewistown.

"I've been working with poultry for eight years," D.J. said. "We have our dealer's license and licenses to haul livestock. We're inspected here every week."

Rob said he hopes to increase business and wants to treat people fair. "Appearance is a key thing," Rob said of the separate auction building at the rear of the

Youth Parade Horses At State 4-H Horse Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Rebecca Kerins was named the 1994 recipient of the Pennsylvania 4-H Horse Program Outstanding Member Award at the 35th annual State 4-H Horse Show held in Harrisburg at the Farm Show Complex. Beckie was presented a western saddle donated by Smucker's Harness Shop, Inc., Narvon.

The daughter of Thomas and Lynda Kerins of Greenville, she is a sophomore majoring in political science at Penn State University.

Kerins was selected on the basis of leadership, 4-H project work, and participation in activities at local, county, district, and state levels.

Beckie is an 11-year member of Mercer County 4-H. She has been actively involved as a teen leader and held several offices in her local horse and veterinary science 4-H clubs. She has served as a teen instructor at 4-H horse camp and as a county 4-H ambassador.

Beckie was named Mercer County's Outstanding 4-H Girl in 1992. That same year Beckie was selected a state winner in the Veterinary Science 4-H program area and won a sponsored trip to National 4-H Congress. In 1993, Beckie was selected Outstanding 4- H'er in Pennsylvania, allowing her to attend the National 4-H Conference during the spring of 1994.

She was member of the Mercer County 4-H Horse Judging Team that won the state 4-H contest in 1989 and 1994. She represented Pennsylvania very well at national horse judging contests this fall. She was also a member of the second place Hippology team in the 1990 state 4-H contest. Beckie has been successful in horse ring as well as having won four state 4-H championships.

"This is the most prestigious award a 4-H horse club member can receive in Pennsylvania," said Beth Lair, Mercer County 4-H Agent. "It takes a lot of hard work and many hours dedicated to 4-H. Beckie exemplifies how 4-H is beneficial to youth as well as their community."

Kerins is a 1992 graduate of Reynolds High School.

Other awards were presented at the show, honoring 4-H horse club members throughout the state.

4-H Potato Teams

Two Lycoming County 4-H potato judging teams recently competed in the Pennsylvania Farm Show that was held in Harrisburg.

The 14 4-H'ers attending as three teams and two individuals were involved in this statewide competition. They judged potatoes for size, grade, appearance, and defects along with 73 other 4-H members from seven counties.

Coached by Ralph and Tom Styer of Muncy, they have been meeting since mid-November in preparation for the event. This year's "A" team won 3rd place and the "B" teams won 4th and 6th planes. The teams consisted of:

A Team

Steve Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Fisher, Muncy; Mariah Peterman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Peterman, Hughesville; Robyn Styer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Styer, Montgomery; Craig Girven, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Girven, Muncy.

B Teams

Julie Stugart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Stugart, Cogan Station; Steve Vandine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Vandine, Muncy; Shelly Vandine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Vandine, Muncy; Toni Rinker, daughter of Gail Rinker, Williamsport; Reuben A. Stugart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben T. Stugart, Cogan Station; Kristopher Robbins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Robbins, Muncy; Leslie Rinker, daughter of Gail Rinker, Williamsport; Grace Delany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Delany, Muncy.

Also competing as individuals were: Daryl Rinker, son of Gail Rinker, Williamsport, and Jeremy Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Harris, Muncy.

Robyn Styer and Mariah Peterman had the special honor of placing 5th and 8th respectively in the top 10 individuals in the state.

More Than Rabbits

Belleville Livestock Market. "But it is a hard business to promote."

Rob said his wife runs the business and he just helps out. "I think she does a good job with it," Rob said of his Pittsburgh suburb-raised wife. He believes the auction way is the fair way for both the buyer and seller.

On auction day, Rob and D.J. wouldn't get through the flurry of activity without helpers like Beverly Peoples and MaryAnn Seitz, who clerk and record purchases and sales, and Don Harnish, who man-handles the crates.

Rob and D.J. have two daughters, Becky and Chrisy, who took grand champion honors with their goats at the Mifflin County Youth Fair last year.

Occasionally an exotic animal or two will pass through the auction. White pigeons are popular for weddings. Permits are needed to sell ringneck pheasants and bobwhites. Pairs of peacocks are popular items. Pot-bellied pigs are not the rave they used to be.

And, Rob said with a straight face if you ever find a guinea pig with a tail, you'd better buy it right away! They're so hard to find, so rare!

But if you believe that, Rob is pulling more than a rabbit out of a cage for auction — he's pulling your leg!

Food, Farm And Fun Fest Planned For Lancaster County

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Food that is grown, harvested, processed or served in the Pennsylvania Dutch Country will be the focal point of the first annual Lancaster County Food, Farm & Fun Fest held June 23-24 at Doneckers Expo Center, 100 N. State St., Ephrata. The event will include exhibitors of Lancaster County raised, grown, or produced foods for sampling and selling, the "World Series of Chicken Cook-offs" by Pennfield Farms, and other promotional activities.

"This is a first-time, one-of-a-kind event," said Jill Brown, Doneckers' director of public relations. "It's a unique combination — part food-tasting event, part a County fair, and part shopping trip."

Corporate sponsors are WROZ-FM radio, Pennfield Farms, and Penn-Dutch Traveler.

"The event links area businesses and farmers with both tourists and central Pennsylvania residents, for face-to-face contact between the producers and their customers," said Brown, "It's a showcase of the finest growers, producers, manufacturers and servers of the foods of Lancaster County and Pennsylvania Dutch Country in one festive, fun marketplace."

The expo joins other events throughout the county to comprise the Pennsylvania Dutch Food Fest, a Pennsylvania Dutch Convention and Visitors Bureau initiative.

Lancaster County's Food, Farm & Fun Fest will be held in the 7,000 square feet Expo Center at Doneckers, Friday, June 23, noon to 6 p.m. and Saturday, June 24, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Exhibitors' booths are available. Call Jill Brown at (717) 738-9515 or Hugh M. Coffman, Coffman Communications, (717) 293-9196.

Cardiovascular Fitness Test For Lancaster Residents

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The American Heart Association, WLYH-TV, the YMCA of the USA and the YWCA of the USA want to know — When it comes to fitness, do you measure up?

That's the theme of this year's "HeartScore '95" project, a week long national campaign to educate more Americans about health, fitness and the value of a regular exercise program.

The project will be launched nationally on a week-long series on the CBS THIS MORNING show scheduled to air February 6-10, 1995.

The American Heart Association has teamed with local YMCA and YWCA branches to provide free fitness evaluations throughout the week to coincide with the television series. The fitness evaluation includes:

• a one-mile walk to assess how well heart and lungs work during exertion, and

• a waist/hip measurement to show where body fat is distributed.

Individuals will receive their fitness results and a chart for recording results on two additional retests which they can conduct themselves. Personalized information about how to improve physical fitness and reduce the risk for heart disease and stroke will also be provided.

Dates, time and locations for the FREE fitness evaluations are as follows:

Lancaster YMCA - 572 N. Queen St., Lancaster 397-7474 - Fitness Center

Mon. 2/6/95 - 9 a.m.-Noon
Wed. 2/8/95 - 11 a.m.-1:00 p.m.
Fri. 2/10/95 - 10 a.m.-Noon

In connection with HeartScore '95 the YMCA is offering free blood pressure screening and a cholesterol screening (fee due upon registration):

Wed. 2/8/95 - 5 p.m.-7:30 p.m.
Thur. 2/9/95 - 8a.m.- 11 a.m.

Call the Lancaster YMCA to register - 397-7474 - Jeff Kenderdine

Lancaster YWCA - 110 N. Lime St., Lancaster 393-1735 - Heidi Weber Enck

Tue. 2/7/95 - 7:30p.m.-9:30p.m.
Wed. 2/8/95 - 7 p.m.-9 p.m.
Thurs 2/9/95 - 7 a.m.-9 a.m.
Fri. 2/10/95 - Noon- 2 p.m.

In connection with HeartScore'95 the YWCA is showing a video upon request entitled Women and Heart Disease produced by the American Heart Association. This 14 minute video will be available upon request to view at the YWCA during the week of February 6-10.

Participants should wear loose-fitting clothes to the fitness assessment.

Individuals who wish to perform their own fitness evaluation at home may pick up the information at a registration desk of these locations or by contacting the American Heart Association 393-0725.

"February is American Heart Month," said Carol Strandberg, AHA Division Director. "Each year the American Heart Association takes its messages about heart disease and stroke prevention to communities across the country."

"Physical inactivity is one of the four controllable risk factors for heart attack. The 'HeartScore '95' event will provide Lancaster residents information about reducing their risks for heart disease—information that could be potentially lifesaving," added Strandberg.

For more information on how to participate or volunteer at "HeartScore '95", call the Lancaster office of the American Heart Association at 393-0725 *2037.

DO YOU HAVE A DRAFT PROBLEM?

Consider using a rigid type 316 stainless steel liner for your existing chimney. We use type 316 instead of type 304 for more acid resistance. We stock tees, ells and liners in 2 ft. and 4 ft. lengths.

AGCO ALLIS
6600 SERIES TRACTORS

OPERATOR FRIENDLY

The AGCO Allis 6600 Series row crop tractors are engineered to put you comfortably in control. In addition to a comfortable cab or a platform and ROPS, you get low maintenance, low operating costs and a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Trouble-free, air- and oil-cooled engine. The 6600 Series tractors are equipped with low-maintenance, 4-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engines. The 6670 provides 63 PTO hp and the 6680 73 PTO hp, both with 22% torque rise. The 6690 has a turbocharged 81 PTO hp engine that delivers a 28% torque rise, as well as the best fuel economy in its class.
- Many speed choices. The synchropower transmission with a separate synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch. An optional creeper transmission provides 16 forward and 16 reverse speeds; a dual speed option has 24 forward and 12 reverse and a power Hi-Lo transmission provides 30 forward and 30 reverse speeds. All tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD.
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and has a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are also available.
- Quality performance and comfort. The 6600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, a tilt-telescopic steering wheel, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns. All operated from the comfort of the enclosed cab.

To experience the user-friendliness of the 6600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

Dengels Recognized As Forest Stewards

HUMMELSTOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Pat and Sam Dengel were recognized recently as forest stewards.

Paul Troutman, service forester for the Bureau of Forestry, Department of Environmental Resources, presented the award at the Dengels' property.

Being designated as a forest steward is an honor reserved for forest landowners who have made a commitment to managing their forest resources to ensure their health and productivity for years to come.

Donald P. Oaks, district forester for the Weiser Forest District of the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources Bureau of Forestry, said the Dengels started the process of becoming a forest steward by having a forest stewardship prepared by Wilbur E. Wolf, Jr., a forestry consultant from Carlisle. The Wieser forest district covers Carbon, Dauphin, Lebanon, Lehigh, and Schuylkill counties.

Troutman said the Dengels have been managing their 20-acre forest for timber, wildlife, recreation, and an investment.

Rub It In

What Is A Rub? A rub is a blend of seasonings that is "rubbed" onto the surface of meat before it is cooked. Using a rub is an easy way to dress up beef steaks and burgers with all kinds of seasoning combinations. Seasonings can be fresh or dried or a mixture. Sometimes a small amount of oil is added to the seasonings to make a paste-type rub.

What It's Not... A rub adds flavor only; it does not help tenderize less tender beef cuts.

How To Rub... Simply cover the outside surface of the steak or ground beef patty with the seasoning blend prior to grilling. Rubs can be applied just before grilling or, for convenience, a few hours in advance-just keep the beef refrigerated until grilling time. Flavors usually become more pronounced the longer the seasoning mixture is on the beef.

Making The Rub... Your pantry and refrigerator contain the makings for all sorts of great rubs. You really don't need a recipe-just think in terms of flavors that taste good together. There are also commercial seasoning blends that can be used as a rub. For example: Italian seasoning, Mexican seasoning, Greek, Cajun, etc.

Rub Combos To Try On Your Own... Experiment and make up your favorite blend of herbs and seasonings. If all of the ingredients are dried, you can keep them on hand, stored in a tightly covered container in a cool dry place. Shake to blend before using. Try these ideas for starters.

ANSWER — Mrs. Wayne L. Miller, Bruceton Miles, W. Va., wanted recipes using coconut Thanks to B. Light, Lebanon, for sending some.

Coconut Strawberry Cake

2 tablespoons red-tinted coconut*
1 envelope whipped topping mix
½ cup confectioners' sugar
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup flaked coconut

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour two round layer pans.

Prepare, bake, and cool cake as directed on package. Set tinted coconut aside.

For coconut topping, prepare whipped topping mix as directed on package; beat in confectioners' sugar and almond extract. Fold in coconut. Spread between cooled layers and on top of cake. Decorate with reserved red-tinted coconut. Store cake in refrigerator until ready to serve. 12 to 16 servings.

*To tint coconut, dilute drop of red food coloring with few drops of water. Add to 2 tablespoons flaked coconut in jar; cover and shake until color is even.

Twin Coconut Rings

1 package Swiss chocolate cake mix
¾ cup packed brown sugar
⅓ cup butter, softened
3 tablespoons water
¾ cup flaked or shredded coconut
¼ cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease two round layer pans or two 6½ cup ring molds.

Combine brown sugar, butter, and water. Spoon evenly into pans. Sprinkle with coconut and nuts.

Prepare cake as directed on package. Divide batter evenly in pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes; cake is done if toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Immediately invert cakes on racks to cool. To serve, cut into slices with serrated knife. 16 servings.

ANSWER — Joanne Swords, Manheim, wanted a recipe for hasty pudding. Thanks to Sarah Clark, Breezewood, who sent an old recipe, which her mother often made, and which she really likes.

Hasty Pudding

1 teaspoon salt
1 cup yellow cornmeal

Bring water to a rapid boil in a heavy covered pot. Add salt and slowly add the cornmeal to the boiling water, stirring constantly with a wire whisk. Continue stirring until the cornmeal thickens, approximately 5 minutes.

Turn heat to low and cover the pot. Continue to simmer lightly, stirring the pudding several times for 30 minutes more.

Pudding may be served warm. Sprinkle with sugar and milk. Or turn out of pan and let cool. Slice then fry in butter. Sarah prefers eating it with maple syrup.

tion) with minced garlic and cracked black pepper.

Italian — Combine fresh or dried oregano, basil and rosemary with minced Italian parsley and garlic.

Rub Recipes To Try...

LEMON-ROSEMARY RUB: Combine 1-1/2 teaspoons grated lemon peel, 1 teaspoon rosemary leaves (crushed), 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme leaves, 1/4 teaspoon coarse grind black pepper and 2 large cloves garlic, crushed. Makes enough to season 2 pounds of beef.

SOUTHWESTERN RUB: Combine 1-1/2 teaspoons chili powder, 1 teaspoon garlic powder, 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves and 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin. Store, covered, in airtight container. Shake before using to blend. Makes enough to season 2 pounds of beef.

PEPPER-HERB MIX: Combine 2 tablespoons dried basil leaves, 1 tablespoon lemon pepper, 1 tablespoon onion powder, 1 tablespoon dried savory leaves and 1-1/2 teaspoons rubbed sage. Store, covered, in airtight container. Shake before using to blend. Makes about 1/3 cup.

SPICY SEASONING MIX: Combine 3 tablespoons chili powder, 2 teaspoons ground coriander, 2 teaspoons ground cumin, 1-1/2 teaspoons garlic powder, 3/4 teaspoon dried oregano leaves and 1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper. Store, covered, in airtight container. Shake before using to blend. Makes about 1/3 cup.

QUESTION — Evelyn Michaels, Beaver, asks if anyone remembers Ole Oid, a type of linament made by Dr. Peter Farhney and Sons Company in N.Y. City. It contained camphor, oil of cloves, sassafras, and turpentine. The Swedish/Finnish community in Tioga County used it widely from the 1930s to the 1960s. Evelyn has asked telephone operators in the calling areas 212, 718, 917, and 914, for telephone listings for the company but no listing exists in those areas. Does anyone know a supplier?

ANSWER — A reader in New York wanted a recipe to make non-edible gingerbread men, which has white glue as an ingredient. Thanks to Wanda Nolt, Peach Bottom, and other readers who sent the following recipe.

Non-Edible Gingerbread Men

1 cup cinnamon
1 tablespoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons Tacky Glue
1 tablespoon cloves
¾ cup applesauce

Combine cinnamon, cloves, and nutmeg. Stir in applesauce and glue. Work mixture with hands 2 to 3 minutes to form a ball. If mixture is too dry, add more applesauce; if it is too wet, add more cinnamon.

Roll dough between wax paper, using cinnamon instead of flour to dust rolling pin and surface of rolling area. Cut into shapes and place on cookie sheet. Use a pencil point to make a hole to thread ribbon through if desired. Air dry, turning every couple of hours. Takes about 3 to 5 days. For faster method, dry in 250-300 degree oven for several hours, turning every 30 minutes.

- New top-of-line bias-ply tractor rear, featuring our long bar/long bar design for tread stability, and heavy bar bracing to extend tread life.
- Long wearing and smooth riding, due to the more uniform, flatter contour of the long bar/long bar design.
- Proven 23° bar angle for traction and open center for self-cleaning.
- Bead and rim protector shields the rim to help keep stubble and soil from getting between the bead and rim flange.

System Features

Big Dutchman has taken its low profile cage and condensed the overall section width to produce the Profit-Tier 420N. This four tier system is designed to maximize density in new or existing houses.

The Profit-Tier 420N features the Champion Feeding System with in-line feed hoppers with belts or gear motor drive.

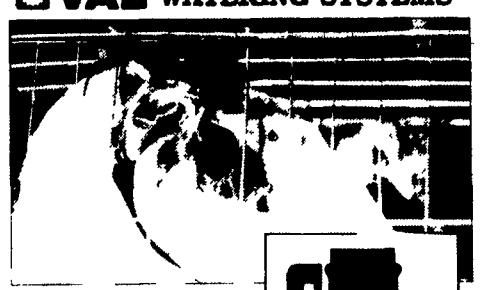
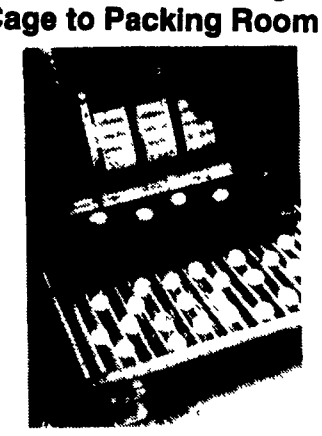
OVAL WATERING SYSTEMS



- Drier manure pits and greater freedom from leaks because of the triple seal stainless steel valve seat and low pressure operation.
- Completely enclosed to promote cleanliness and sanitation.

Reliable, Safe Egg Collection and Handling from Cage to Packing Room



The transfer of eggs from cage belts to cross-conveyor is a critical step in mechanical egg handling. The big Dutchman Fingerbelt collector utilizes a series of rubber fingers mounted in a durable belt to hold eggs in a safe position on the incline, going down from cage belts to cross-conveyor

Big Dutchman. . . The Proven Concept in Automated Feeding

No auger or link feeder can perform as efficiently as the highly successful concept of feeding with a wide chain from a hopper that is open at both ends. It has been proven time and again for over forty years in poultry houses around the world.

Northeast Dairy Leaders Praise Export Incentives

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The U.S. dairy industry will benefit from enhanced export incentives for the first half of 1995, two Northeast dairy leaders said recently.

Lewis Gardner, president of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, and Robert Gray, executive director of the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives, hailed action by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to provide "bonus awards" to U.S. exporters of milk powder, butterfat, and cheese.

"This will allow U.S. dairy products to be sold at competitive world market prices to more countries than ever before," Gardner said. "We've been fighting for this kind of incentive for months which would help provide a more fair international playing field."

Gray said, "In lieu of a long-term policy, such as a farmer-run 'self help' program, these short-term bonus awards will help the U.S. dairy industry gain footholds in the global marketplace and combat unfair trade practices."

Gardner and Gray praised Acting Secretary of Agriculture Richard Rominger, who announced allocations under the 1995 Dairy Export Incentive Program (DEIP). Rominger said he was allowing "the timely use of the DEIP" in previously untargeted countries.

"This should help the U.S. dairy industry to seek the export market opportunities that will become available as the (GATT's) Uruguay Round agreement goes into effect," Rominger said. "These initiatives will mark the Administration's efforts toward implementing our commitments to reform the USDA export subsidy programs to building markets, combating unfair trade practices, and expediting the interagency review process."

Export sales will be facilitated through the payment of bonuses by the USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation. This will allow sales of milk powder, butterfat, and cheddar, feta, gouda, cream, mozzarella, and processed American cheeses to be made through normal commercial channels at competitive world prices.

The USDA said bonuses under the program are available to 100 countries totaling 114,500 metric tons of milk powder, to 99 countries totaling 37,650 metric tons of butterfat, and to 75 countries totaling 3,850 metric tons of cheeses. These allocations will be valid until June 30. USDA will announce new DEIP allocations to take effect after June 30, Rominger said, because July 1 is the date that U.S. commitments to reduce export subsides take effect under the Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Export subsidies, such as those the U.S. uses to support DEIP sales, will be reduced by all countries signing onto GATT, said Gray, whose Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives includes the Massachusetts-based AgriMark, the Vermont-based St. Albans, and the New York-based Eastern and Upstate Milk cooperatives.

Gray also said that any GATT country with an internal support mechanism or subsidies will be required to establish a ceiling for these subsidies. "However," he said, "because of past reductions in the federal farm commodity programs, including the support price program for milk, the U.S is not required to make any internal support reductions as part of the GATT agreement."

URBAN DEVELOPMENT/ RIGHT-TO-FARM

Paul H. Patterson, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor
Poultry Science

This past fall I had the opportunity to hear two interesting presentations regarding urban vs. agriculture conflicts and right-to-farm issues. As poultry and other livestock operations come in closer contact with new urban and rural neighbors, being a good neighbor is not only the right thing to do from a neighborly standpoint, it may very well discourage litigation by urban neighbors that don't fully understand the needs and requirements of your farming operation.

Greg Andrews from the Pork Producers Environmental Law Education Network at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa presented "The Future of Urban Vs. Agriculture Conflicts" at the recently held Regional Extension Poultry Specialist Workshop in Asheville, N.C. Andrews said nuisance complaints have been a hot issue recently with a lot of livestock producers involved in lawsuits. The basis of his advice to producers comes from research summarized in a book completed by Professor Neil Hamilton, entitled, "A Livestock Producer's Legal Guide To Nuisance, Land Use Control, and Environmental Law".

The restrictions on agricultural production are more and more prevalent. For example, recently the Environmental Law Education office received a call from the city clerk of Miloy, Iowa, population 41, asking what ordinances they can pass to restrict farming operations within and adjacent to their town. Many of the small cities have large boundaries and several farm operations are within the city limit.

One of the things many states did in the late 1970s and early 1980s was pass right-to-farm laws. Many of the laws were clarifications of the rights coming from the nuisance doctrine. The nuisance doctrine simply says if you are there first, you get to continue. Therefore, they should have to put up with it.

Frankly, the right-to-farm laws have proved to be of limited effectiveness. An example was a case in Iowa where a feedlot was protected under the Right-To-Farm Law, but not the spreading of manure which one would think was an integral part of the feedlot.

The problem with the Right-To-Farm Law for judges is you should not be allowed to spread manure, for example, to the extent that your neighbor is so disturbed that he can't enjoy his property. Other examples where right-to-farm laws were not effective is when there is a change in the farming operation, for example, the farm expanded and shifted from one kind of production to another. The poultry farm shifted from dry litter to wet litter, and because of the shift, the Right-To-Farm Law would no longer apply.

Two other points Andrews made were:

1) when legislation is enacted to restrict others, it normally restricts you. An example is when agricultural land is placed in an agricultural preservation zone with the good intentions of keeping it in agriculture. But many people see their land as their retirement and may want to develop and or sell off land in their old age.

2)It is not us vs. them anymore. Some extremely large livestock operations are coming into central Iowa under an agriculture exemption from county zoning. Probably it was never the intention of these laws to allow such an enterprise, but rather a typical farm during the period when the law was enacted in 1946.

Michael Olexa with the Food and Resource Economics Department at the University of Florida discussed "Nuisance Compliant Legislation" and what it could mean to poultry farms and their owners. His presentation was made at the 1994 National Poultry Waste Management Symposium held in Athens, Ga. last fall. Olexa pointed out that today, knowledge of specific areas of law such as environmental law and common law liability is becoming as critical for the operation of a farm as knowledge of traffic laws is for the operation of an automobile. Common law of torts imposes standards of behavior to deter wrongful, negligent, or unreasonable dangerous conduct and provides compensation for victims of such conduct. A tort is an act or omission that is deemed blameworthy. To agriculture, common law is much broader, addressing the reasonableness of all aspects of husbandry practices.

Nuisances affecting the public or private individuals have traditionally been the most widely used theory in environmental pollution actions. An example might involve animal waste runoff, or flies interfering with the public's right to safe drinking water. A public official could obtain an injunction stopping the activity creating the nuisance and an adjacent landowner may recover money damages through a private nuisance action. A private nuisance must involve a substantial interference with another's use and enjoyment of land, such as exposing one to undue noise or unsightly appearance. It must be wrongful either by being intentional and unreasonable or from negligence, recklessness or abnormally dangerous activities.

In nearly every state, right-to-farm laws may give limited protection as a defense to a nuisance action. However, this defense is limited because it does not affect the enforceability of antipollution laws.

Olexa concluded by saying that knowledge of nuisance law is vital for farmers in rapidly developing areas with expanding populations. Knowing the potential for nuisance actions, and the available defenses, is one preparatory step a farmer can make.

Ag Secretary Appoints Haas

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Willard Haas of Klingerstown, Pa., has been appointed to serve as a member of the United Soybean Board (USB) by Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy.

Haas, who was nominated for the post by the Pennsylvania Soybean Association, was seated at the organization's annual meeting here in December 1994. In addition to serving as one of the 63 farmer-directors of USB, Haas was appointed to the international consumption committee.

Haas, his wife June, son Stephen and wife Virginia, farm about 1,400 acres of soybeans, corn, and wheat in the Klingerstown area. He also has a poultry operation of about 235,000 layers. Haas has been active in the Pennsylvania Soybean Association for a number of years, and was a school director for 10 years.

The USB manages soybean growers' investment in the National Soybean Checkoff, which funds research and marketing programs for soybean growers, who contribute ½ of 1 percent of the value of their crop when sold.

Also at the meeting, Barry Mumby, Fulton, Mich., was re-elected chairman. Jerry Slocum, Coldwater, Miss., was elected vice chairman of the board and appointed chairman of the audit and evaluation and strategic planning committees. He previously served as treasurer of USB.

Russ Roe, LeRoy, Minn., was elected treasurer and chairman of the budget and finance committee. Roe previously chaired the research committee. Betty Wiese, Versailles, Ill., was elected secretary. All officers are also members of the USB executive committee.

In addition to elections and appointments, USB's farmer-directors reviewed and adopted the organizations' strategic plan. The plan establishes long-range goals, objectives amd strategies to ensure coordinated use of check-off funds for maximum benefit to soybean farmers and the industry. It also specifies research and promotional programs that create, expand and protect markets for U.S. soybeans at home and abroad.

Dairy MAP Workshops Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy MAP is an educational program sponsored by Penn State, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and numerous dairy industries throughout the state. The MAP in Dairy MAP stands for management and profitability.

Dairy MAP is a two-day workshop designed to help dairy farm families learn how to apply successful business management concepts to their farming operation. Emphasis is on helping families determine what they want to accomplish with their lives and how the farm can help them do that.

They learn how to formulate personal and business mission statements that help give purpose and focus to all that they do. They learn how to write goals that support the farm's mission. Tactical management plans are developed that help the farm meet its established goals. To help make sure that all their talk and all their planning gets transformed into action and accomplishments, a control system is developed to monitor the farm's progress on a regular basis and to designate corrective actions to be taken when the business is not on track.

What has been described is the basic Dairy MAP course, known as MFS (managing for success). Graduates of this basic MFS workshop are eligible to enroll in a variety of other Dairy MAP workshops, such as financial management and labor management, where they learn how to apply the basic management skills learned in MFS workshops to specific areas of farm management. All workshops are limited to 20 people.

Dates of upcoming MFS, labor and financial management workshops are listed below. For registration and for additional information, call the telephone number listed after each workshop.

Managing a farm requires teamwork. To encourage the farm's management team to attend the same workshop, the second person from the farm attends free. The registration fee is $100. It covers workshop materials, lunch and local meeting expenses. To encourage their clients to attend, some local businesses are reimbursing 50-75% of their clients' registration fees.

Extension Annual Meeting

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Cooperative Extension annual meeting and social event will be held Thursday, Feb. 2 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Cost is $3 and reservations can be made by contacting a cooperative extension board member or the cooperative extension office.

Dairy Nutrition Workshop

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — On Feb. 2, 9 and 16 a three-day Dairy Nutrition Workshop will be transmitted from Penn State via satellite to dozens of downlink sites throughout the Northeast.

One of the downlink locations is the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The workshops begin promptly at 9:45 a.m. and conclude at 3:15 p.m. Registration fee is $30 per farm for materials plus an additional $20 per person for lunches and local meeting expenses.

Attendance will be limited, and reservations will be accepted on a first-come basis.

DHIA Records Workshops

Workshops will be conducted to help farmers learn how to use their DHIA records for making informed herd management decisions.

Raleigh DHIA records will be discussed at the following times and places:

Pennsylvania DHIA records will be explained March 3 at 12:30 p.m. in the basement of the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Pork Forum Set

SALISBURY, Md. — The 1995 Delmarva Pork Forum will be held on Saturday, Feb. 25 at the Richard A. Henson Center on the campus of the University of Maryland Eastern Shore (UMES) in Princess Anne, Md.

The annual event is being sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services in Maryland and Delaware. Registration and the trade show begin at 8 am. The program concludes at 4 pm.

There will be an open house at the UMES Swine Research and Education Facility and Maryland Central Test Station at the conclusion of the educational program.

The Pork Forum will consist of four educational sessions that are suitable for large commercial producers as well as part-time producers. These include health issues facing the swine industry, marketing hogs produced on the Delmarva Peninsula, nutritional considerations for the pork producer, and the sustainability of swine production.

Speakers will include swine specialists from Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. Several veterinarians are also slated for the program.

The registration deadline for the Pork Forum is Feb. 16. The $10 per person registration fee covers educational materials and lunch. Checks should be made payable to the Wicomico EAC and be mailed to Dr. Mark Estienne, Department of Agriculture, University of Maryland Eastern Shore, Princess Anne, MD 21853.

In today's rapidly changing swine industry, it is becoming more and more difficult for many pork producers to remain competitive. All swine producers from Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and surrounding states are encouraged to attend the 1995 Pork Forum. For additional information or a copy of the program agenda, contact Dr. Estienne at (410) 651-6194.

BUSINESS ◆ NEWS

Keller Joins All Plant

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — All Plant Liquid Plant Food, Inc. of Ashland, Ohio has announced the addition of Paul E. Keller of Womelsdorf as regional sales manager.

With more than 17 years experience of selling plant foods, Keller is responsible for developing sales of All Plant Products east of Ohio directly to farmers and through farmer dealers.

Keller also farms 150 acres with his wife and children in Berks County.

Collins Joins Farm Credit

YORK (York Co.) — Kenneth C. Collins of Hanover was recently hired by Farm Credit as a financial management service (FMS) specialist.

Collins was formerly employed by Agway, Inc. as district manager for Dekalb brands in western Pennsylvania. He has operated his own consulting firm providing business analysis and tax services.

Collins' education includes a bachelor's degree in accounting and a master's degree in business administration (MBA).

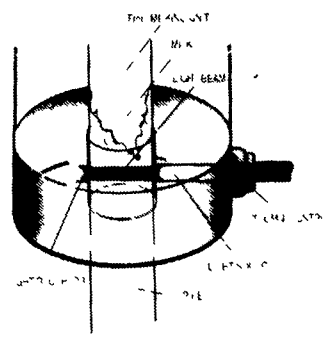
Collins will serve farm clientele in the Pennsylvania counties of Franklin, Fulton, Cumberland, and Perry and in the Maryland counties of Frederick and Washington. Collins will deliver accounting and record keeping services, tax planning and preparation, and business management counseling and advice.

Detachers Have Infrared Optic Sensing

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — Regardless of the milking machine manufacturer, detachers across the marketplace require an accurate sensing device. Surge has developed and patented a state-of-the-art infrared optic sensor.

Unlike all other take-off sensing devices, Surge patented optic sensing actually "sees" the milk flow through the milk-flow sensor. The milk breaks a beam of light during the milking cycle. When the milk flow stops, the end-of- milking light is again received by the receptor and a signal is sent to the Surge Omni detacher control. Following an adjustable time delay, the vacuum is shut off and the pressure inside the milker unit is equalized to the atmospheric level and the unit gently detaches.

The Surge Optic Sensing does not depend on milk contact to detect milk flow, so buildup from milk fats, proteins, and cleaning solutions will not inhibit the sensing accuracy.



The sensing eyes are tightly sealed and fully encapsulated in an epoxy potting compound. The epoxy potted sensors are physically protected from moisture, impact, and the adverse effects of expansion and contraction because of environmental changes. Because the epoxy potting's durability and environmental integrity, it is frequently used by other industries requiring maximum electrical connection protection.

Zeneca To Market Microencapsulated Corn Herbicide

WILMINGTON, Del. — Zeneca Ag Products announced that it plans to offer a microencapsulated corn herbicide, TopNotch, for the 1995 planting season, pending registration.

The active ingredient in the product is acetochlor, which was first registered in March 1994 for use in the U.S. as Surpass and Harness Plus herbicides.

The new microencapsulated formulation was designed to provide the most consistent residual control of annual grasses in no-till corn, according to Zeneca's Dirk Drost. Encapsulating the active ingredient extends the length of effective weed control in no-till corn.

"TopNotch provides excellent control in no-till when applied early preplant through crop emergence," Drost said. TopNotch also washes off trash more completely as a result of the encapsulation.

Each microcapsule, containing the active ingredient acetochlor and the corn safener dichlormid inside a thin polymer wall, is about 10 microns in size — roughly one-tenth the diameter of a human hair. The microcapsules are suspended in an aqueous base. The in situ encapsulation process allows for thinner, smoother walls and less polymer overall in the formulation.

The technology also allows Zeneca to control the rate of herbicide diffusion through the microcapsule walls.

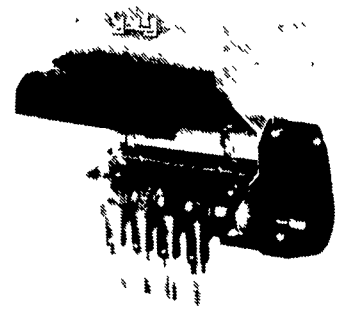
Gandy Introduces Positive Displacement Row Applicator

OWATONNA, Mn. — spring 1995, Gandy Company is introducing a positive displacement metering (PDM) system for all of its row crop granular chemical applicators. This new metering system is available on new Gandy applicators or as replacement attachment for existing Gandy row hoppers.

The system's benefits provide positive shutoff when the parent drive stops, thus eliminating dribble when planter or implement is lifted on headlands or into transport position. Also, when mechanically driven from a ground wheel or live shaft, the Gandy PDM system is speed compensating, applying the same rate per acre even when field speed varies.

The application rate is governed by a set of sprockets, ordered separately, which determine the rate per acre. Multiple hoppers may be connected in line to run from one set of sprockets. User must supply input drive sprocket and chain based on his parent implement drive.

For more information, contact J.S. WOODHOUSE CO., INC., 572 Industrial Drive, Lewisberry, PA 17339, (717) 938-5100.



For spring 1995, Gandy Company is introducing a positive displacement metering (PDM) system for all of its row crop granular chemical applicators. This new metering system is available on new Gandy applicators or as replacement attachment for existing Gandy row hoppers.

Inline Ripper Available

WAHPETON, N.D. — Wil-Rich manufacturing announces the release of the 357 inline ripper.

The 357 inline ripper is available in a 3-, 5-, and 7-shank unit. Shank can be set up on 30-inch or 36-inch spacing.

Minimum cutting width starts at 5 feet and goes to a maximum of 18 feet. Shank options available are a parabolic shank, which is 1-1/4 inches- x 3 inches-high strength abrasion resistant steel, or the straight knife shank, which has two replaceable knife edges or 1-1/2-inch wide chromium carbide steel on a 1 1/4-inch x 3-inch shank.

Either a two-piece point or a two-piece wing point are available for the ground working tool. You can choose an option of a 20-inch plain or a 20-inch rippled coulter to cut the residue that remains on the top soil. For heavy residue conditions, a rear shank extension is available to offset the shanks and allow more residue to pass between the shanks.

For more information on the full line of Wil-Rich equipment, write: Wil-Rich Manufacturing, P.O. Box 1038, Wahpeton, ND 58074.

Wil-Rich 357 Inline Ripper is available in a 3-inch, 5-inch, and 7-inch, shank unit. Shank can be set up on 30-inch or 36-inch spacing.

Farm Safety, Health In Spotlight At Conference

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. — Farmers are invited to attend Farm Family Insurance Companies' 1995 Rural Health and Safety Conference, March 22, at the Sheraton Hotel in Saratoga Springs. The conference is open to farmers in New York, New England, and New Jersey.

In addition to a CPR certification course, the two-day event will offer special sessions on wellness, physical changes with age, dealing with the elderly on the farm, personal protective equipment, and chain saw safety. There will also be a presentation on establishing a Farm Safety 4 Just Kids Chapter.

If you're interested in attending, contact your county Farm Bureau president or call the NYFB Communications Dept. for more information at (518) 436-8495.

Wix Filters Receives National Award

WIX Filters has received a national award from FFA in recognition of its decade-long support of careers in agricultural and FFA chapters nationwide.

The award, presented during the 29th annual FFA National Convention in Kansas City, Mo., recognized WIX Filters for participating in the convention for the past 10 years and providing funds for FFA scholarships and chapter programs.

"We enjoy our association with the FFA and appreciate this recognition," said Les Peterson, marketing manager for WIX Filters. "FFA does an outstanding job promoting careers in agriculture, and we are pleased to be a part of that effort."

During the convention, WIX Filters sponsored an information booth, helped select the national student winner of the "Agricultural Sales and Service Award" and contributed vehicles from its collectible cars series to a FFA fund raiser.

In addition to supporting the convention and career show, WIX Filters sponsors an annual fund raising event for FFA chapters, paying 25 cents for each WIX Filters boxtop turned in between the first of January and April 15. The program has generated more than $250,000 for FFA chapters.

WIX also offers four National FFA College scholarships to FFA members pursuing degrees in agricultural mechanics, and sponsors the National FFA Foundation .

Baler Produces Dense, Chopped Bale

COLUMBUS, Ind. — The Claas® Rollant® 46 Round Baler with Roto Cut cutting device produces a dense, evenly distributed bale. The solid bale better retains hay quality and breaks apart easily, simplifying feeding.

Equipped with a 6½ -foot pickup, unique rotor and precision cutting system, the 46 Rotocut balers provide increased throughput and reduce peak loads.

The baler's wide double tine pickup provides clean, efficient pickup even in wide, uneven windrows. Its unique Helix-4 rotor with 34 star shaped tines feeds crop evenly, quickly while 14 knives provide a clean, tidy cut.

The knives on the 46 Roto Cut are spring loaded and individually protected from foreign objects and automatically reset after object has passed through.

PLAN NOW FOR 1995!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

When Planning Your Forage Programs, Remember That Your Main Objective Is To Store The Plant And Remove It From Storage In As Good Condition As Possible. The Upright Silo Has Never Been Equalled In Its Ability To Do This...
On Most Dairy Farms, Forage Quality Is The Single Most Improtant Factor Relating To Profit...

Poured Concrete Silos Consistently Out-Perform All Other Methods Of Storing And Preserving The Total Digestible Nutrients In Forage Crops...

"Nobody Protects Forage Quality Like We Do..Nobody!"

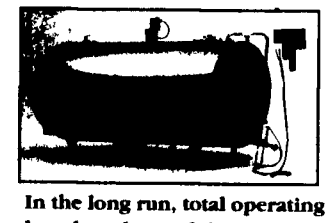
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Offer

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

Contact your Mueller distributor for further comparisons.

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- ◆ Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels.
- ◆ Improved energy density of your rations.
- ◆ Excellent quality control.
- ◆ Exchange programs with feed mills.
- ◆ Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- ◆ We also buy corn and soybeans

Safety Shields Removed for Display Purposes Only
Heavy-duty, full-width cross shaft and chain final reduction drive standard on all elevators
Flights are closer spaced and have wider steel back than many other brands for faster feed delivery and minimum rideup
Conveyor Chain Take-up
Boot has been moved closer to chain flights for improved cleanout
EXCLUSIVE Boot Guard with Agitator
• Heavy-service, belt-type guard attached to sturdy hinge on boot
• Guard rests on flights - movement of flights provides agitating action - keeps material or silage out of boot and moving up elevator
E-Z Open Cleanout Hole with Swinging Door provides quick access to boot
Two, not just one, greasable, bronze pillow-block bearings on each tail, head and cross shaft for longer sprocket, shaft and bearing life

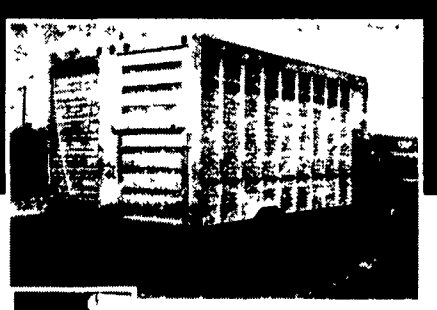
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Use Flourescent Lighting For Energy Savings

U-TUBE LAMP & SUPPLIES

"...the biggest advantage of these lamps is the economic savings over the life of the bulb. Once the initial investment is paid back, which will be done in less than six months, the increased electrical economy make such bulbs the most logical way to light..." MICHAEL J Darre PHD Animal Science University of Connecticut

PHILIPS

ENERGY EFFICIENCY AND LONGER LIFE

Earth Light Collection lamps pay for themselves many times over by providing significant savings on energy, maintenance and replacement. Compared to ordinary incandescent lamps. Earth Light Collection lamps save up to 76 percent on energy. The SLS23, for example, will save $67* over the life of each lamp. What's more, these energy savings are compounded by savings on maintenance and replacement. With an average life of 10,000 hours. Earth Light Collection lamps last up to 10 to 13 times longer than ordinary incandescents.

Beginning Farmer Program To Feature Farmer Teachers

MILLHEIM (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania, not unlike neighboring sister states, may be nearing a point that puts a new spin on the old chicken-and-egg dilemma.

This time the question may be which will come last — the chicken or the egg — or the farmer?

With the average age of Pennsylvania farmers now over 55 and the loss of farms at a rate of about 1,000 per year, with more and more farmers taking off-farm jobs to help make ends meet, the state is in jeopardy of being forced to rely increasingly on imported food.

"It's a situation that must be taken seriously," said Preston Boop, a farmer and president of the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA). "We must adopt measures that will encourage more people to get into farming and to assure that they can derive an adequate income for their work.

"Agriculture continues to be our state's major industry, but its base is eroding rapidly. A healthy farming industry is important to the stability of rural communities, to the preservation of open spaces and the environment, not to mention the production of nutritious food locally," Boop said.

To that end, PASA and a related group, Pennsylvania Farm Link, will sponsor a daylong workshop for beginning and aspiring farmers on Feb. 2 at the Nittany Lion Inn on the Penn State University campus. The PASA's two-day Farming for a Greener Future follows on February 3-4.

The workshop will feature presentations by hands-on farmers, farm finance leaders, and university experts with advice and counsel on various problems and obstacles faced by people aspiring to careers in production agriculture, either as full-timers or weekend farmers.

"We're bringing together a group of presenters that represents many years of practical experience in farming and in farm-related activities," Boop said. "We encourage anyone interested in farming in Pennsylvania or in any neighboring states to take advantage of this program."

Registration information may be obtained from the PASA office at (814) 349-9856 or Pennsylvania Farm Link at (800) 9PA-FARM. A $25 registration fee for individuals, or $40 for couples, will cover enrollment and lunch.

According to Farm Link coordinator Marion Bowlan, "This workshop is a very good opportunity for people hoping to participate in Farm Link. Our program requires some training for new farmers, particularly in the area of estate planning and transfer."

The conference will include presentations on farm financing, farm profitability, start-up approaches, marketing strategies, vegetable, dairy and livestock production, machinery-purchasing tips, opportunities in alternative and innovative farming approaches and farm-family dynamics.

"We're looking for new ways to reduce the high costs of getting into farming," said PASA executive director Timothy Bowser. "New sustainable, less capital-intensive methods such as rotational grazing, reducing dependence on purchased chemicals and fertilizers, and diversifying farm production offer hope to beginning farmers who need to squeeze more out of tight profit margins."

Hereford Bull Sales Mark Record Average

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Hereford bull sales increased slightly in 1994 with a solid average price of $2,280 paid at public auction sales across the nation. This is the highest average price documented in the 114-year history of record keeping by the American Hereford Association.

A strong demand for Hereford bulls has existed for each of the last five years as national sale averages have exceeded $2,000. Following is a listing of national bull sale averages by year: 1990—$2,053; 1991—$2,210; 1992—$2,194: 1993—$2,260; and 1994—$2,280.

National bull sale averages for the Hereford breed in 1994 were compiled from reports of 170 public auction sales held from coast to coast. Of these auction reports, 118 were breeder production sales and 52 were consignment sales. The sale of 7,789 1/4 bulls amassed a gross of $17,760, 217 to average $2,280.

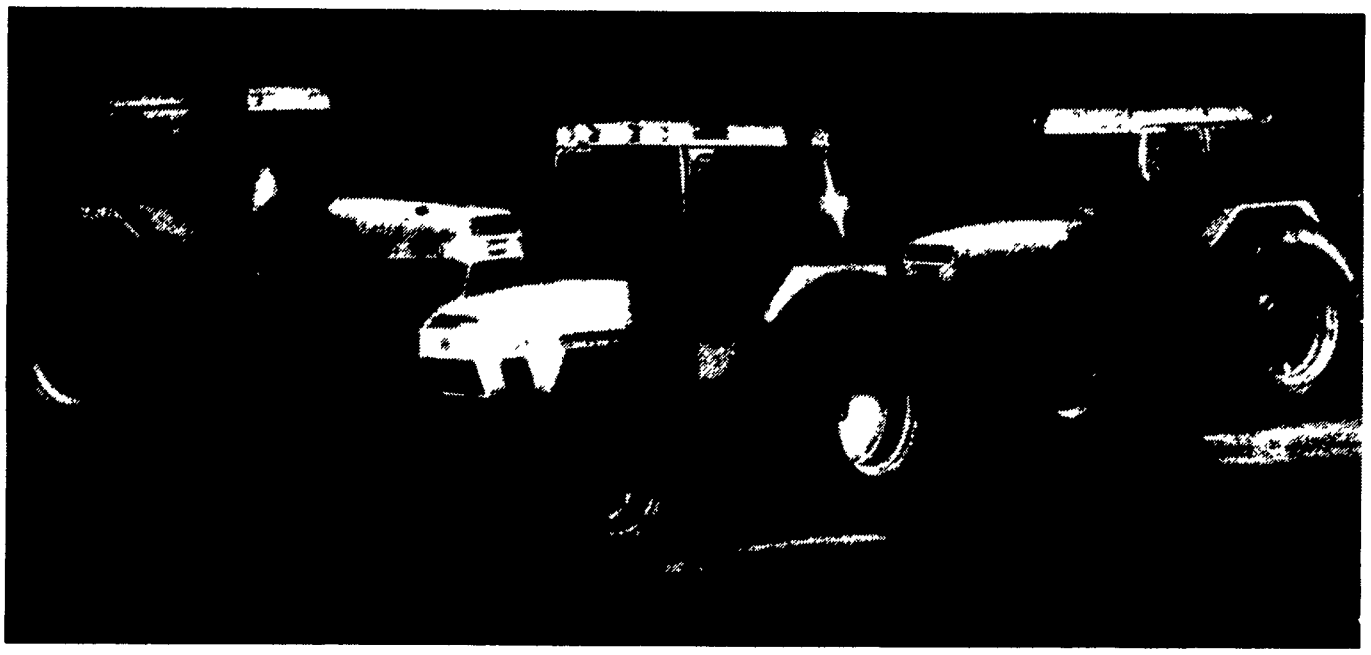
Sales of Hereford females were brisk in 1994 as 2,937 1/2 lots sold at auction for $3,315,567 to average $1,333. This average had decreased compared with the averages of the previous four years: 1990—$1,442; 1991—$1,669; 1992—$1,608; and 1993—$1,527.

The combined average of bulls and females was $2,021. This average was established on the sale of 10,726 3/4 head of registered Herefords at 1994 auction sales for a gross of $21,675,784. For reference, in 1993, the Hereford breed marketed 11,726 1/4 head of registered bulls and females for a gross of $23,677,778 averaging $2,019.

The top Hereford bull sales in 1994 were recognized in two different sale categories, production and consignment. Within each category, sales were broken down according to number of bulls sold.

Best Values in New Equipment

ANY FAMILY RESEMBLANCE IS PURELY INTENTIONAL.



The legacy of MAGNUM™ and MAXXUM® now enters the mid-range class.

Introducing the Case International 3200 and 4200 Series tractors. Five new tractors ranging from 42 to 85 PTO hp. Powered by tough Case IH diesel engines. And worthy of the reputation for reliability, durability and performance established by MAGNUM and MAXXUM.

These new tractors offer smooth, new synchronized speed and range transmissions with reduced shifting effort in all gears. Heavy-duty clutches, final drives and PTOs are strengthened for long life under the toughest conditions. And super-responsive hydraulics cycle quickly for precise loader control.

Sleek new styling increases visibility, a vital asset for loader work. Large front and side grilles add to engine cooling and performance. And on cab versions, plenty of glass area and a MAGNUM style right-hand console-lift operator productivity to new heights.

To find out which 3200/4200 tractor best suits your needs, stop by one of these Case IH dealers. While you're there, ask about Total Product Support—our commitment to the service and parts that add life to your tractor.

The new Case International 3200 and 4200 Series tractors. Proof that good looks and great performance run in the family.

Penn State Brings High-Tech Info To Chester County

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Chester County residents now have access to research-based educational programs and information from across the United States and beyond through a satellite telecommunications downlink facility installed by Penn State University for Cooperative Extension.

Penn State's satellite receiving dish (the downlink) and accompanying equipment, plus the technical support from the University, is an investment exceeding $11,000 in educational resources for Chester County. Cooperative extension offices in 60 counties in Pennsylvania now have satellite programming capabilities.

Penn State is a member of the Agricultural Satellite Corporation (AG*SAT), a consortium of land-grant universities dedicated to expanding opportunities for distance education. Through AG*SAT, live and pre-taped programming originating at land-grant universities (like Penn State) and other locations is beamed to a satellite and transmitted to any site with a receiving dish, or "downlink." The information then can be viewed on a television set or monitor with VCR in a room at the downlink site appropriately wired to the receiver.

The installation provides county residents with access to a wide variety of new educational services. The new downlink facility allows county residents to participate in live video teleconferences. During these conferences, viewers at the site can talk by telephone to experts at other locations and get an immediate response. A wide variety of programming is now available in all subject areas served by the College of Agricultural Sciences. In addition, by sharing the downlink with county departments such as the Children, Youth & Families, Health Department, Solid Waste, Recycling, Planning, Human Services, and others, county employees can take advantage of many inservice educational opportunities.

Lamartine F. Hood, dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and chairman of AG*SAT, said, "This new facility puts Chester County in the forefront of distance education technology. It allows the latest information to be brought directly to people who can immediately put it to use. It also allows people to interact with experts in a number of fields."

Trudy Dougherty, county extension director, will oversee and administer the downlink. Thanks to the support of the Chester County commissioners and to the technical assistance and expertise provided by Jay Patton from the county engineering department, the new downlink facility is located at the Government Services Center on Westtown Road, West Chester.

Various meeting rooms throughout the building will be wired to the receiver by the county telecommunications department so that cooperating county departments can view programming on their own monitors.

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty If your work watch stops running within THREE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next three years

To receive your new work watch, read and complete the coupon below, and send it with your payment to:

Ag Must Be Competitive, Seek New Markets

HONOLULU, Hawaii — For agriculture to survive the changes taking place in Washington, "we must be competitive on the supply and marketing side and seek new and expanded markets on the demand side," National Council of Farmer Cooperatives President Wayne Boutwell told cooperative members recently at the 66th annual meeting.

He told the group that "the new Congress is going to be probusiness, prowork, antiregulation, and antigovernment assistance. To the extent that they are successful, it will provide some benefits and present some challenges to agriculture."

Boutwell explained that the issue that will most dominate the debate will be the budget. The immediate impact for agriculture will be the budget resolution covering the next seven years.

"This is where the baseline levels of spending for various programs will be established. For agriculture, this will be the process that establishes the funding for the 1995 Farm Bill," he said.

"The challenge in writing the 1995 farm bill will be how to fit all the needs into a shrinking budget and, at the same time, win a debate over whether or not the government needs to be involved in agriculture," the co-op leader said. "One thing is for sure, the pressure will be on to make further cuts in agricultural spending across the board." Realizing this, NCFC helped organize a coalition within the agriculture community to try to keep agriculture from taking a disproportionate share of any budget cuts.

In the final analysis, however, agriculture will have less government support, Boutwell pointed out. "This will create a greater need for farmer cooperatives to help enhance farm income and provide stability. We will be looking for opportunities to make improvements in the tools available to cooperatives to meet this need," he said.

The NCFC chief encouraged each co-op leader to contact their members of Congress. "There is nothing more important in today's environment than for members of Congress to hear directly from their constituents," he said. "Together, we can help maintain a sound policy for agriculture and cooperatives."

SPACE, TIME AND MONEY

That's what you can expect to save with a Case International 8570 rectangular baler.

The 8570 makes bales that save space by compressing the same amount of hay as approximately 20 conventional bales into a 1,000 pound, mid-size package. With fewer bales to handle, you save time and money, too. And the bale size is ideal for storing, handling and feeding.

The low-profile pickup and center-line feeding system keeps nutritious leaves in the bale. Other features include automatic hydraulic bale density control, double-tie knotters and electronic monitoring system.

7200 Series of MAGNUM™ Tractors.

• Five tractors so relentlessly strong, they may surpass all that you've experienced in agricultural power. Ranging from the 130 PTO hp 7210 to the 215 PTO hp 7250 - the most powerful 2WD tractor in the world. Each built with a brand of durability, reliability and performance that will exceed even the highest expectations. • Five tractors so fully equipped, they will surprise even the most demanding operator. With 3-pt. hitch capacities up to nearly 7-1/2 tons. Standard 18-speed full power shift transmissions that shift easier than ever. And the most comfortable cab we've ever manufactured. • Five tractors so thoroughly refined, they stand as proud testimony to all that we've learned from our customers. With the enhanced controls, improved monitor access and state-of-the-art seat that you requested. • The next MAGNUM. After seven years on the cutting edge of performance, dependability and durability, we knew of only one way to go: Further.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Has CASE IH The Early Riser® Compliancy Plan:

(Ready For Delivery)

No Attachments Required

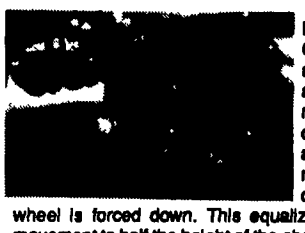
A Case International 950 Early Riser planter is designed to plant in mulch-till and no-till fields as well as it does in clean-tilled fields

Yet you won't have to add costly coulters or down-pressure springs. Plus, no matter what the field's tillage condition, you'll get accurate seed placement, spacing and depth control for fast, complete germination

The secret's in the design. The exclusive Cyclo® Air metering system and Early Riser row-unit together put seed in a precision-controlled environment, which results in fast starts and bigger yields next harvest

Stop by to find out more about the Case International 950 Early Riser planters the original conservation compliance planters

6 Row Planter With Dry Fertilizer And Lots Of Other Fine Features



Front Pulled, Equalizing Gauge Wheels- These are connected through a special linkage that maintains equal pressure on the gauge wheels at all times. As one wheel moves up and over an obstacle, the other wheel is forced down. This equalizing action limits opener movement to half the height of the obstacle and results in more uniform depth control and better seed placement. Example: If your customer is planting two inches deep and encounters a 2½ inch root, the equalizing gauge wheels will limit opener movement to 1¼ inches, so the seed is planted in the soil, not on top of it.

Earth Metal® Opener Blades - Earth Metal blades are known for their superior wear characteristics and strength. This is especially important to your customers who rely on the planter to do more of the tillage function in reduced tillage operations. They provide increased service life over standard opener blades.

Staggered Disc Openers- Staggered double disc openers use the leading disc to cut the soil and residue and the trailing disc to open the seed trench. This design provides superior cutting efficiency and penetration over parallel double disc openers. This design virtually eliminates the need and costs of add-on coulter attachments common to competitive so-called "no-till" planters.

Furrow-Firming Point - Any double disc opener tends to leave a "W" shaped seed trench that can lead to uneven depth control, inaccurate in-row seed spacing and germination problems. To eliminate these concerns, the Early Riser row unit uses a furrow firming point to remove the seed trench "W's and leave a well-defined "V" trench bottom.

NOTE: Some competitors have tried to tell your customers that the furrow firming point compacts the soil and reduces germination, but this is not true. The furrow firming point isn't as wide or deep as the double disc openers that actually open the seed trench. A rolling disc opener creates a water-wheel effect with the loose soil it's moving. Some of this loose soil falls back into the just-opened seed trench. The furrow firming point removes this loose soil.

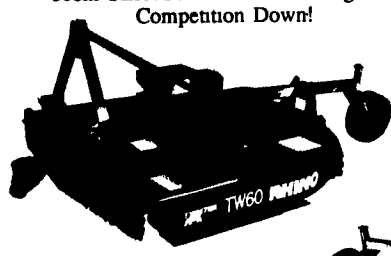
Ideal To Shred Corn Fodder!

Quality, Dependability and Performance Are Three Great Reasons Why The TWISTER Family of Medium-Duty Cutters From SERVI-RHINO Is Mowing The Competition Down!

TWISTER

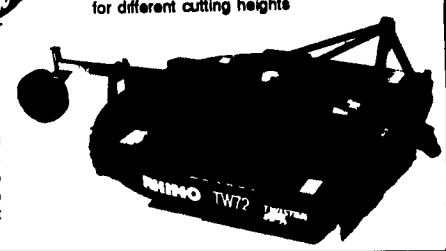


TW60

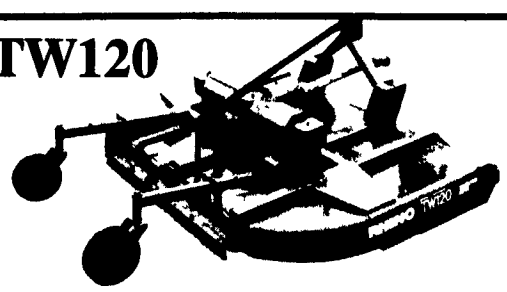
The TW60 mows a full 5' swath and is available in 540 RPM and three-point lift. The TW60 requires only a 30 HP tractor (with adequate front weight) to save on operating costs. The tail-wheel beam of the TW60, 72, and 84 lift-type cutters are easily adjustable for different cutting heights

TW72

The TW72 mows a 6' swath of material and can be operated on a tractor as small as 40 HP (with adequate front weight). The floating top linkage of the "A" Frame allows the TW cutters to follow the contour of the ground in rough conditions without damange to the hitch



TW120



Rhino Cutters In Stock

Performance and Durability for Larger Acreages! 120" Cut; 120 HP Center Gearbox; 100 HP Outboard Gearboxes, Pan Blade Carriers, Updraft Blades, Cat. 4 Driveline with Slip Clutch Protection; 540 Lift or Pull-Type; 10-Gauge Deck; 1/4"x10" Side Skirts; Replaceable Skid Shoes, Rated for 2" Diameter Material, Safety Deflectors Standard

RHINO REAR BLADES

With Hydraulics For Tractors Rated From 75-150 DBHP. Available w/7', 8', 9' & 10'

Moldboards. Also Smaller Heavy Built Units In Stock

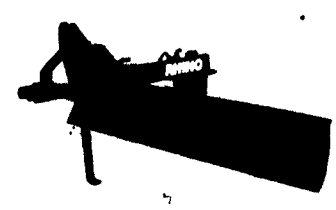
RHINO

If It's Snow Removal Or Heavy Duty Excavating, You Need A Rhino Blade From Binkley & Hurst Bros. Now!



A support stand is standard on the 800 Blade to provide safer storage and unit hook up. The moldboard and replaceable cutting edge form a constant curvature to cut and roll the material being worked more efficiently. Optional equipment includes quick tach end plates, skid shoes, and CAT II quick coupler bushings

The 800 Blade features mainframe swing moldboard pivot and moldboard tilt to fit a wide range of applications. The blade can be offset a maximum of 30° from the center line of the tractor for working outside the tractor tire. The moldboard can be pivoted a full 360 degrees for backfilling or working in hard to reach areas

Three Point Hitch

HERE'S NOW IT WORKS

1. Start. The wide, low profile pickup picks up the crop and feeds it through the wide, open-throat directly into the baling chamber by driving over the center of the windrow
2. Form. Continue feeding hay into the chamber If your windrow is narrower than the pickup, alternate feeding the windrow on the right and left side to ensure a well-shaped bale Weaving isn't recommended
3. Stop. When the dense outer shell has been formed, you'll hear the "full bale" buzzer You're now ready to wrap and eject the bale by moving to the center of the windrow and stopping
4. Wrap & Eject. Wrap the bale using the programmable, electronic controller After wrapping, eject the bale

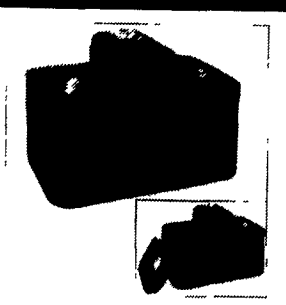
ENERGY FREE WATERERS



Water comes from the ground normally around 45°-52° F. When the water enters the MiraFount and the closures float up and seal off the drinking ports, the MiraFount becomes a thermo for livestock. Whenever an animal drinks, it removes a quantity of water which is immediately replaced by ground water through the valve. This exchange of water keeps the water warm even in the coldest climate and cool in warm climates. A minimum of 20 head of cattle or 25 head of hogs will keep the MiraFount frost free all winter in most locations.

DMI

DMI's Patented Point Makes The Difference

ECOLOTIL SYSTEMS

DMI SYSTEM	Min. HP Required
3 Shank Ecolotil	80
5 Shank Ecolotil	130
527 Ecolotiger	130
530 Ecolotiger	170
730 Ecolotiger	250

Each of these machines can be equipped to meet your particular needs. Your choices include shank style, shank arrangement, coulters/ discs, rear levelers or point style.

Soil Compaction is a problem on every farm we've checked. Breaking up the compaction layer

1) decreases soil run-off in wet years, by permitting water to percolate into the subsoil

2) makes room for plant roots systems to seek and find moisture in dry years

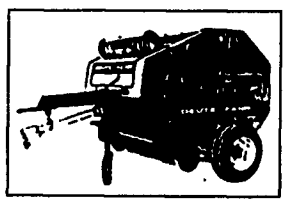
Built to go the distance

Deutz-Fahr GP round balers are tough They're built for productivity in the heaviest forage or residue crop, from haylage to corn stalks

A wide open throat, and full width 58" pick-up with four rows of double tines, spaced at a narrow 2 ⅛", pave the way for positive feeding, without plugging Slick grasses flow through with the same straight forward efficiency as the heaviest swaths

Power driven ribbed profile steel rollers - 17 on the GP 2 30, 22 on the GP 2 50 - compress material from the outside in, forming extremely dense, weatherproof bales Smooth bales that keep their shape and preserve quality



Faster,tying-faster baling The automatic twin arm tying system reduces binding time to 14 seconds An optional netting attachment wraps the bale with net, twine, or a combination of both All functions are monitored from the comfort of your tractor seat with a control box that uses visual and audible signals

GP 2 30 for easy to handle 4'x4' bales from 500-700 lbs (hay)
GP 2 50 for solid 4'x5' bales, weighing up to 1000 lbs (hay)

Either way, there's a reliable Deutz-Fahr round baler to match your tractor power, and your feeding and storage operation

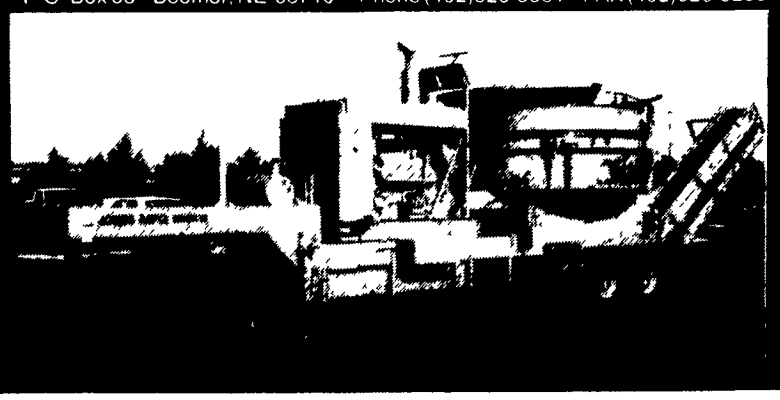
JONES MANUFACTURING CO.

"SINCE 1929" Mighty GIANT

P O Box 38 • Beemer, NE 68716 • Phone (402)528-3861 • FAX (402)528-3239



Jones Manufacturing was the first with a hydraulic-opening tub, the first with an electronic governor and the first with a Hydra-fork. From the single 14" discharge auger, to the rubber lagged, top-drive elevator with our exclusive Jones-Ridge Belt, no other grinder in the world has the features, capacity, and durability of the Jones Mighty Giant. There's a Jones Manufacturing Mighty Giant tub grinder that's right for your operation!

Mighty GIANT Tub Grinders:

- ✓ Portable and efficient - fill w/ most loaders
- ✓ Engines come standard w/mfg's extended warranty
- ✓ Several Hitch styles available - Pintle, Truck Hitch and Gooseneck
- ✓ Self-contained, portable Hydrafork and PTO models also available

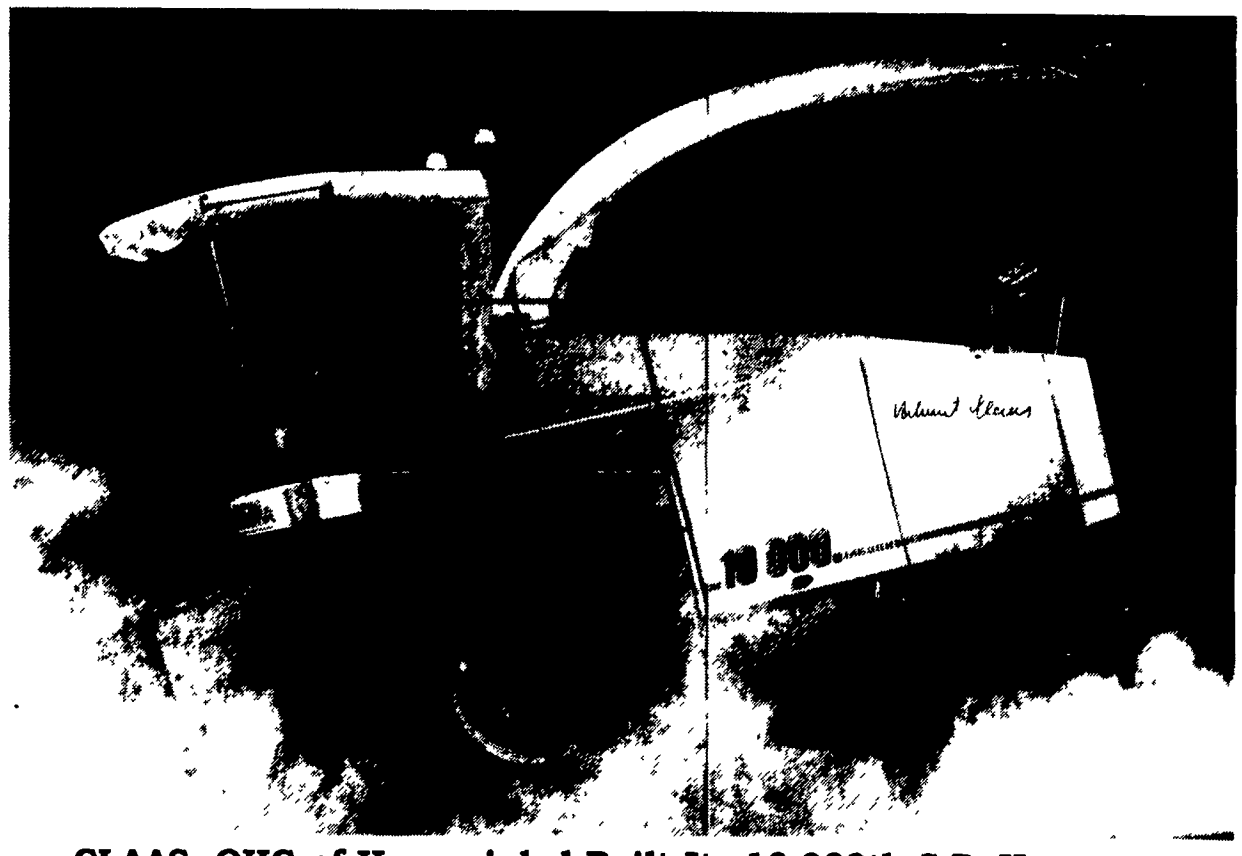
WE REPAIR AUGERS

Get Your Table Auger Repaired For Your Combine Replace Complete Section. Same As New. All Makes And Models. Why Buy New, Get Your Auger Repaired SAVE!!!



CLAAS, OHG of Harsewinkel Built Its 10,000th S.P. Harvester in late 1944.

Forage harvester performance redefined

CLAAS JAGUAR self propelled forage harvesters have established a unique reputation for outstanding output, reliability and versatility along with unbeatable forage quality With JAGUAR 880 and 860, plus the new 840 and 820 models, CLAAS provides you with a complete new generation of machines.

All in all it adds up to the highest performance available, with a throughput of the JAGUAR 880 of around 170 tons per hour in corn, more comfort and of course a better return on your invested capital.

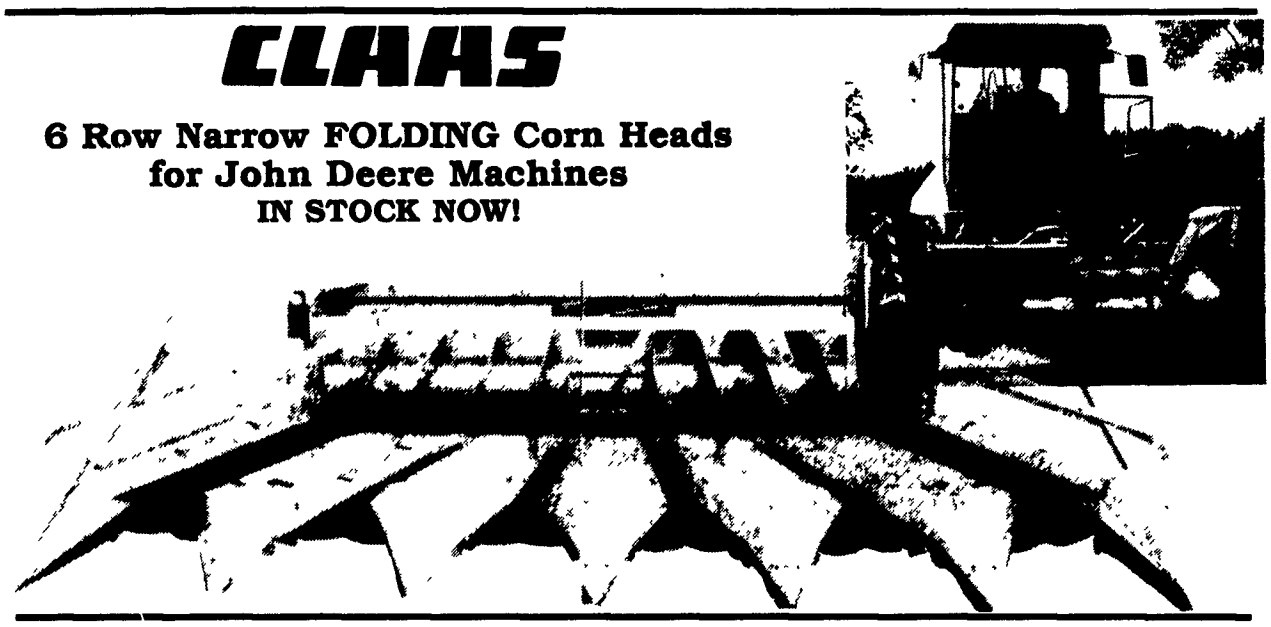
IN STOCK NOW!



MF 3120T TRACTOR

Open platform version of the MF 3120T provides a value-priced alternative when a cab is not essential.

Open platform model now available.

Open platform configuration offers an unobstructed view of work areas to the front, sides and front axle area. Semi-flat floor deck provides plenty of leg room both under the pedals and between the seat and dash column. Deluxe spring suspension seat is vinyl covered to resist the elements. Seat adjusts six different ways to suit operator's needs. FOPS sun shade, protecting the operator from the sun's heat and falling material, is standard equipment on the open platform model 3120T. Grab handles and nonskid steps aid in getting on and off the tractor.

Purina Calf Startena®

Assurance that the dairy replacement heifer will reach her full potential.

For over 50 years the leader – but never more so than today.

When Purina introduced Calf Startena back in the 1930's, it was widely recognized as the most advanced calf starter every made up to that time. Over the years, Startena has changed dramatically as researchers have discovered new information about the calf's digestive system, the onset of rumen changes, and nutritional requirements for proper rumen wall development.

WHY NO HAY

Since 1949, Purina researchers have recommended against feeding hay (or any other forage) to calves under two months of age. For years, this "no hay" premise was in dispute, but today most nutritionists agree. However, many dairy operations still include hay in their feeding programs, even though tests show it is an unwise practice.

Performance of Dairy Calves On Hay vs. No Hay Regimens

	Hay (Ad Lib)	No Hay
Total Weight Gain (lb)	58.20	69.50
Daily Intake Startena (lb)	1.71	2.10
Daily Intake Alfalfa Hay (lb)	.41	–

Duration of trials: 4 days to 2 months of age

An extra 11.3 pounds of gain, as averaged by calves that did not receive hay, is especially valuable in the early weeks.
